GENERAL WANG I-TANG OUTLAWED BY PEKING PRESIDENTIAL MANDATE

SECOND LIST OF WAR CRIMINALS HAS 12 ANFUITES

Arrest Of Six Solons And Five Militarists Is Also Ordered

Chinese Stock In Russian Bank To Be Turned Over To Ministry

In deference to Tuchun Li Shun's charge against General Wang I-tang, Northern peace delegate at Shanghai, for instigating a rebellion in his province with bandits, Peking issued a Presidential Mandate Saturday night, dismissing Wang from office and ordering his immediate arrest for punishment "with the full rigidity of the law."

THE MANDATE

A translation of the Mandate follows:

"We are in receipt of a telegraphic communication from Li Shun, Tuchun of Kiangsu, reporting that Wang I-tang had delegated his subordinates to instigate disturbances in Yangchow, Chinkiang and the Provincial Capital by means of bribing the military police, the salt police and the local brigands and that conclusive evidence of the guilt had been secured.

"He asks us to have Wang arrested in order that he may be handed over to a court of law for trial.

"As Wang I-tang has been appointed chief peace delegate by the Government, having important functions to perform, his act in intriguing with the military police, etc., in creating disturbances of peace is most intolerable in the eyes of law.

"Beside having him dismissed from his office by the Cabinet, Wang is hereby ordered to be deprived of all his titles, ranks and decorations and the military police and local authorities are hereby ordered to have him arrested at once and to have the punishment meted out in accordance with law."

Peking, August 8.—A mandate was issued last night, containing the names of the six following members of Parliament, whose dismissal and punishment has been ordered: Fang Chu, at present at Shanghai as Northern peace delegate, Kuang Yung-chin, editor of the Kuo Shih-pao, which is General Ni Shih-chung's organ; Kang Shih-to, treasurer of the International Press Club; Cheng Wan-chan, Chancellor of the Frontier Defense Bureau; Chuang Yin-hsun, Chief Secretary of the House of Representatives, and Chang Hsu-en, treasurer of the Anfu Club. The following Frontier Divisional Generals are also included in the mandate:—Generals Chu Tung-feng, Chen Wen-yun, Wei Chung, Liu Shun and Chang Hsu-yuan.

The latest addition to the proposed Cabinet has created considerable surprise, Tsao Jui being nominated Minister of the Interior. It is understood that a provincial post is being offered to Tien Wen-lieh.

TO VISIT LEGATIONS

General Chang Tso-lin will visit the legations tomorrow.

General Chang has suggested the withdrawal of the Mukden troops but the President considers the step premature.

It is reported that Mr. Obata, the Japanese minister, replying to Chinese communications with regard to the number of Japanese troops along the Chinese Eastern Railway, stated that it was impossible to withdraw the troops at present owing to the Bolshevik menace.

CONFIRMS PLAN

Peking, August 8.—A mandate, issued this evening, says: "Education is a matter of prime importance to the nation. Some time ago the ministry concerned was instructed to prepare a fund for educational expenses. According to a petition from the Ministry of Education the interest on China's share in the Russo-Asiatic Bank has hitherto been devoted to education and this Ministry asks for China's share of the capital of the Russian Bank to be used as an education fund and for a mandate, confirming that plan.

"The suggestion is hereby granted. Thus the limitations of the

HARDING SAYS CONSTITUTION NO SCRAP OF PAPER

Republican Candidate For President Goes On Record As To Warfare

(Reuter's Service)

Marion, Ohio, August 5.—Senator Harding, addressing a meeting here today, opposed the surrender of nationality to internationality. He said that he accepted the principle that no authority other than Congress could declare war for the United States.

"Why make a Covenant that would violate the good faith of nations? Suppose, under Article Ten, armed force was agreed upon and Congress declined to respond.

"Then the Executive would be called upon to carry on a war without constitutional authority or we should prove our complete compact to be no more than a scrap of paper. We are on the side both of safety and honor and hold for ourselves the decision of our obligations to the world."

COX IN CHALLENGE

Dayton, Ohio, August 8.—There were stirring scenes here today on the occasion of Governor Cox's speech, accepting the Democratic nomination as candidate for the Presidency. The speech was easily audible by the whole audience, owing to the employment of an electric sound amplifier.

Governor Cox declared himself an unequivocal supporter of the League of Nations and accused a "Senatorial cabal" of plotting in the midst of war to undo President Wilson's work in order to prevent the Democrats winning the coming election. He criticised the Republican declaration with regard to the league, as interpreted by Senator Harding, asserting that it simply meant a separate peace with Germany.

Governor Cox said that that would be the most disheartening event in civilisation since Russia's separate peace with Germany and would be in all circumstances an infinitely unworthier action.

He declared that Senator Harding in plain words proposed to remain out of the League.

MUST JOIN LEAGUE

After dwelling on the possible consequences of such action, Governor Cox referred to domestic problems. He said that he favored a reduction of taxation and suggested that one way of raising funds would be a tax of one to one and a half percent on business sales.

This would affect profiteers. Governor Cox also favored the carrying of the St. Lawrence waterway to the Atlantic as an outlet for the States, lying about the Great Lakes.

Great Commercial Fleet To Operate In Pacific Waters

(Reuter's Service)

New York, August 5.—The American Ship and Commerce corporation announces the purchase and amalgamation with the corporation of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company and other companies. The combined fleet totals over 80 ships, aggregating 600,000 tons. It will be remembered that the Commerce corporation recently agreed to operate the ex-Hamburg-Amerika trade routes.

Wooden Ships Are Failure Verdict Of Shipping Experts

(Reuter's Service)

New York, August 5.—It transpires that the Government's much-advertised fleet of wooden merchant ships, built during the war at a cost of £50,000,000, lies rotting in various harbors in the United States. American shipping men advocate burning the lot to save the cost of maintenance as they are totally unable to compete with steel vessels.

BRITISH PUBLIC MAKES PROTEST ON HIGH PRICES

Chinese Coal Companies In Competition For Business In European Cities

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 7.—The Times publishes reports of trade conditions in different centers showing how the uncertainty of the financial and economic position has adversely affected trade in London and the development of transactions overseas.

It is declared that the disposition of the public to confine purchases to absolute essentials, as a protest against high prices, is becoming accentuated and may lead to a further restriction of consumption.

The attitude of the banks regarding credits is also affecting trade.

The prospects of the Dundee jute trade are regarded as bad, owing to competition from Calcutta.

London, August 7.—It is reported on the Newcastle Exchange that Chinese coal companies are competing for European business and that the Danish State railways have purchased cargoes of Chinese coal for immediate shipment.

Nome, Alaska, August 5.—Captain Thoand Amundsen, the Norweigian Arctic explorer is departing today to resume the attempt to reach the North Pole on board the Maud. He intends to drift with the ice pack from Wrangel Island.

Churchill Describes Attack At Hilla

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 5.—In the House of Commons today Mr. Winston Churchill said that the column, attacked by the Arabs at Hilla, had been sent out to prevent the spread of disaffection northward. It was attacked while returning.

The losses, in addition to casualties, included one field-gun, seven ammunition-waggons, twelve Lewis guns and 89 transport carts. It ought not to be assumed that all the missing had been killed, and possibly many of the casualties were heat casualties.

Replying to Mr. J. C. Wedgwood as to whether the column had been ambushed, Mr. Churchill said that it appeared to have been an attack on the rear-guard of the retiring force, which had been vigorously pressed home.

RECORD AT PANAMA

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, August 5.—Two thousand four hundred and seventy-eight commercial craft, aggregating 8,500,000 tons, passed through the Panama Canal during the year which ended on June 30. This is a record.

"Piccolo" Dies

"Piccolo," the diminutive Chinese who has won a reputation of an international character as a seller of cigarettes at the Astor House, is dead. He passed away suddenly after having suffered an attack of stomach trouble. He was 28 years old, although he looked only about 12 years, and was known throughout China and generally among the foreigners who make trips to this country.

ALLEGED SLAYER OF GIRL CHARGED IN MIXED COURT

Case Remanded For Week After Arrest In North Is Proved By Police

COURT ROOMS PACKED

Hundreds Throng Premises As Suspected Murderer Of Girl Appears

After being brought down to Shanghai from Hsuchowfu, Kiangsu, under armed escort, Yen Jui-sung, alias Yen Lu Huang, (Devil King), was formally charged with having been concerned with two others not yet in custody, in the murder of Lien Ying, the 20-year-old sing song girl, by strangling her and with robbing her of jewelery to the value of $4,000.

A huge crowd thronged the Mixed Court long before the case was called. The prisoner, who was formerly one of the beaus of Chinese society, was attired in a coarse bluish suit, bare-footed and looked disheartened.

REMAND GRANTED

The remand was asked by Detective Sergeant Quayle. Mr. L. Kentwell, representing the prisoner, submitted that it was usual in cases of this nature to prove the arrest before asking for a remand. The Court granted the remand after hearing the evidence of arrest.

The assessor, Mr. Blackburn, stated that the question of jurisdiction would be decided on next Monday.

The murder took place just two months ago in a wheat field off Siccawei where the International, Chinese and French boundary lines meet. The question of jurisdiction furnished interesting discussion ever since the murder took place.

ARREST OF YEN

Yen was arrested in Hsuchowfu at the railway station while attempting to secure a job with the railway administration. Armed with a certificate of a local school, Yen asked to be given a post in the station. His name, which had been extensively advertised in the local Chinese press since the murder, attracted the attention of the military police, who immediately placed him under arrest.

Yen was sent to Shanghai under armed escort and reached here Sunday morning. A preliminary examination was made by the police. It is said that a diamond ring was found on the person of the accused said to be one which belonged to the unfortunate girl.

The accused, it will be remembered, was alleged to have borrowed a car from the fifth son of Chu Pao-san, retiring chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, and took a joyride with the girl on the night of June 9. Both disappeared after then.

The body of Lien Ying was found later in the wheat field. She had been strangled to death with a silk sash. Her jewels, valued at over $4,000, were missing.

Yen's arrest was subsequently ordered by the municipal police and a reward of $1,000 was offered.

SINN FEIN IS BLAMED FOR INDIA REVOLT

Court Martial Concludes Its Investigation Into Army Disorders

WILD SCENE IN HOUSE

Commons Disrupted When Mr. Joseph Devlin Is Removed From Seat

(Reuter's Service)

Allahabad, August 7.—It will be recalled that early in July three-fourths of the battalion of Connaught Rangers stationed at Simla, excited by the latest accounts which had reached them by mail of events in Ireland, laid down their arms and while entirely respectful to their officers, refused to perform their duties.

These men were then transferred to a separate camp with another British regiment in charge.

When news of this reached a detachment at Solan, in the Simla Hills, some of the men tried to seize arms and cartridges; the guard fired, and two men were killed and one wounded.

A Court of Enquiry into the foregoing occurrences was instituted and its finding has now been published. The Court found that outbreak was pre-arranged and was undoubtedly caused by Sinn Fein agitation. The Court recommended that ninety of the ring-leaders should be court martialed.

WILD SCENE IN COMMONS

London, August 6.—There was a wild scene in the House of Commons this afternoon during the Committee stage of the Restoration of Order in Ireland Bill.

Mr. Joseph Devlin in a long speech denounced the proceedings as humbug and a sham. He was called to order for irrelevance but declined to sit down and continued speaking. As the House was in committee, the Speaker was summoned and a motion for the suspension of Mr. Devlin was carried by 259 votes to 43. The Speaker then asked Mr. Devlin to leave the House. Mr. Devlin walked out without demur, followed by the other Nationalists, a great majority of the Labor members and some Independent Liberals, amid the jeers of the Ministerialists. The occupants of the Front Opposition bench, both Liberal and Labor, remained in their seats and did not take part in the demonstration.

DEVLIN SUSPENDED

London, August 6.—The disorderly scene during the committee stage of the Restoration of Order in Ireland Bill in the House of Commons today which resulted in the suspension of Mr. Joseph Devlin lasted some time, Mr. Devlin speaking nominally on a point of order, but his speech was really a vehement denunciation of the Government, the bill and the procedure adopted.

He declined to take any notice of the Chairman of Committee, and at one point both were on their feet together, while loud cries of "Order" and Opposition countercries made it impossible to hear their remarks.

DEFIES CHAIRMAN

Finally in a lull the Chairman ordered Mr. Devlin to withdraw. He declined to do so and the Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms approach-

Democratic Candidate For Vice-President

Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, who was selected by acclamation as the Democratic candidate for Vice-President of the United States at San Francisco. Twenty years ago the greatest of the Roosevelt family successfully waged his campaign for the Vice-Presidency of the United States. Today, although he is of different political faith from that of his great predecessor, Franklin D. Roosevelt is about to launch his campaign for the same high office. Franklin D. Roosevelt was born at Hyde Park, January 26, 1882. His father was James Roosevelt, a fourth cousin of the late Colonel Roosevelt. He is a graduate of Harvard, Class of 1904, and also attended the Law School of Columbia University, being admitted to the New York bar in 1907. The same year he entered politics and was elected to the State Assembly. He has long been known as a foe of Tammany Hall and on several occasions directed successful fights against the famous political organisation. In March, 1917, he was appointed Assistant-Secretary of the Navy.

Remaining Congressmen To Have Two Busy Weeks Before Going To Korea

Japanese Anxious Te Have Visitors Omit Hermit Kingdom And Go Direct To Their County; Representative Is Here To Make Arrangements

Not a dull moment will be experienced by the Congressional party now remaining in China during the two weeks left before they are turned over to the Japanese. An official itinerary has been announced by Mr. Edwin S. Cunningham for the party, which spent the day in Hangchow yesterday and passed through Shanghai this morning en route for Nanking.

The visitors will arrive in the Kiangsu capital this morning at 9 o'clock. They will be heartily entertained by the Tuchun of the provinces. General Li Shun has especially brought 20 motor cars and over 200 electric fans for the use of the guests during their stay in Nanking.

GO TO TSINAN

Tomorrow at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, the party leaves Nanking for Tai-an. After spending two hours in Tai-an, the delegation will resume its trip to Tsinan, Shantung, arriving at the latter city at noon at Thursday.

The Civil and Military Governors of Shantung will be hosts of the deputation for the afternoon and at 8 o'clock, Thursday night, it entrains for Peking, arriving at the capital on the following morning at 11:30 o'clock.

The elaborate plans of welcome in the capital will last six days. On August 19, the guests take the morning train for Tientsin, arriving there at noon. On the same night they will travel by train to Peitaiho, thence they go to Mukden on August 22. From this point the party will be turned over to the Japanese Government committee.

CHANGES MADE

Efforts are being made now to change the itinerary of the Congressmen from Mukden as originally planned. It is understood that the Japanese are anxious to see the party omit its visit to Korea, where the arrival is expected to be made the occasion of a new Korean uprising.

A certain Japanese, named S. Otsuka, said to be representing the Governor-General of the Kwangtung leased territory, has come to Shanghai to arrange with the party and effect the omission. It is his and the Japanese general's desire that the visitors should go from Dairen, direct to Japan, thus avoiding witnessing any demonstrations.

The send-off at the Shanghai-north station was again enthusiastic yesterday morning. The station was profusely decorated. The band of the Police Chief of Nantao was present to render some lively airs, while a large number of prominent local officials were present. Many American returned students accompanied the party in its visit to the Chekiang capital.

Japanese Massacred By Russians At Okhotsk

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, August 8.—The Government has received information from Okhotsk that Japanese residents there have been massacred and the town burned. No details are yet to hand. The Russian Volunteer Fleet steamer Astrachan is on her way to Vladivostok with five hundred refugees from Okhotsk on board.

Vladivostok, August 7.—The captain of the steamer, Astarchan, belonging to the Russian Volunteer Fleet, has sent a wireless message to Vladivostok, stating that in view of the wholesale destruction of dwellings at Okhotsk by the Partisans, the representative of the Provisional Government in the Okhotsk district has requested the steamer to return to embark five hundred refugees for Vladivostok.

NEGOTIATIONS SLOW

The Chairman of the Chita delegation states that their negotiations with the Vladivostok and Amur representatives have so far been only an exchange of opinions. Negotiations are proceeding slowly, the only question as yet discussed being that of the proposed All-Eastern Government.

The Chinese Consul at Nikolsk has petitioned the Russians to allow Chinese residents to carry arms for protection against bandits. The request has been granted, providing that the Chinese co-operate with the Russian militia.

London, August 5.—It appears that one of the victims of the Nikolaievsk massacre was a British subject, Mr. John Freed, the manager of a fishing station. The British Government has despatched a sharp note to Moscow, declaring that Mr. Freed was "butchered in cold blood for no reason" by persons, claiming to be in communication with the Moscow Government. The note protests against "this disgraceful outrage on a British subject" and reserves the right to claim from the Moscow Government compensation to Mr. Freed's relatives.

ASSEMBLY MEETS

Vladivostok, August 8.—Although every peasant delegate had been entrusted by his electors with a definite program, in many cases a sound one, the thirteenth meeting of the assembly started late and the subjects on the agenda were uninteresting.

Five members of various committees resigned and the elections of others to take their places followed a few straggling members arrived from Harbin.

The Jewish Socialists request that their representative should be allowed a seat in the assembly and all other requests and petitions were handed over to various committees to be dealt with.

The pension law called forth some argument but was finally passed. The members and the general public then began to leave. Some interest was shown when one of the members, M. Makaroff took a photograph of the Assembly Hall but, when developed, it showed empty seats.

Prince Of Wales In New South Wales

(Reuter's Service)

Tenterfield, N. S. W., August 5.—The Prince of Wales has crossed the border into New South Wales thus completing his official visits to all the States.

Queensland vied with the other States in cordiality of welcome, the unanimity in the enthusiasm of which has been a revelation even to Australians. The tour has brought out a wonderful manifestation of the feeling of citizenship of the Empire and of loyalty to its Head, who is the connecting link between the great component dominions.

American Veterans In Tribute To British

(Reuter's Service)

New York, August 5.—Mr. Franklin O'Oller, National Commandant of the American Legion war veterans' organisation, cabled to Earl Haig and Earl Beatty, paying a tribute to British valor, on the occasion of the anniversary of the declaration of war, and saying:

"When we contemplate what would have been the state of affairs in the world today, had not Great Britain acted as she did, the trials and difficulties of the present hour sink into comparative insignificance."

Russians Try To Shift Blame For Difficulties Along Border

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 7.—Relations between Germans and Poles at Danzig are becoming more strained following on the decision of German workmen not to discharge vessels bringing munitions for Poland. Poles in Pomerania, including railwaymen, have now ceased to transport food supplies to Danzig from Poland. The stoppage is complete and may, it is feared lead to a suspension of industries and an economic crisis.

London, August 6.—According to the latest report from Warsaw, the Bolsheviki offensive on the river Bug has been arrested. The Poles have launched a counter-attack from the north which is developing successfully. The Poles have also recaptured Brody.

General Wrangel in the Crimea appears to be giving the Red armies an unpleasant time. According to a message received from Constantinople, he has completely defeated the Red armies after several days heavy fighting, taking 4,000 prisoners, 39 guns, 150 machine-guns, 4 armored trains and large quantities of war material. General Wrangel, the message adds, is pursuing a completely disorganised enemy.

LABORERS PROTEST WAR

London, August 6.—A strongly worded manifesto signed by eight Labor M.P's. and eight prominent Trade-Union leaders was issued this afternoon, turning the British public against the possibility of drifting into another war, accusing Poland of self-aggrandisement and declaring emphatically that "British Labor will not co-operate in the war as allies of Poland."

London, August 6.—A Polish Government wireless message sent out this afternoon says: "In the present unfavorable circumstances the Polish Government considers in view of the refusal of the Soviet to conclude a regular armistice, that it must at least demand that all aggressive military activity be interrupted on both sides."

NO MOBILISATION ORDERED

London, August 6.—Very vague reports continue to circulate regarding the possible military and naval action which Great Britain may take to assist Poland against the Bolsheviki, but it is denied that the Government have decided to mobilise forthwith four British divisions and the whole Navy. It is pointed out that the time for taking such drastic steps has not yet arrived, and that it is still hoped that there will be no need for them, but all measures have been taken for instant re-imposition of the blockade.

The Daily Chronicle says that orders in connection with the enforcement of the blockade have already been sent to the naval commanders.

MAY DEPORT DELEGATES

The Daily Mail says that the Cabinet is discussing the Bolsheviki reply today but that it is already understood that the delegates will be asked to leave the country.

The Political Correspondent of the Daily Chronicle, in spite of the assurances in the reply, is of opinion that Moscow is merely playing for time in order to have the greatest possible advantages.

The Times confirms the report that the Bolshevik terms include free transit across Poland between Germany and Russia and describes the crisis as only less tragic than that of August, 1914. The journal declares that our only possible guarantee is the unwavering co-operation of Great Britain and France.

Mr. Arthur Henderson has telegraphed to the local Labor parties throughout the country, advising the organisation of citizen demonstrations against intervention and the supply of munitions to Poland and demanding peace negotiations, the raising of the blockade and the resumption of trade relations.

Warsaw, August 7.—After conferring with the Polish armistice delegates who have returned from Baranovitchi, the Polish Government have decided to await the reply to the Polish note laying down certain conditions, before authorising the departure of the peace delegates to Minsk.

STOP BOLSHEVISM

Washington, August 7.—Mr. Colby, Secretary of State, had a long conversation with President Wilson at the White House yesterday. It is understood that the Polish situation was discussed.

The (unofficial) government view appears to be that military measures will be necessary if the spread of Bolshevism is to be prevented. It is considered that not only is Poland's integrity concerned but the peace of the world endangered.

High officials are considering urging President Wilson to call a special session of Congress, which ordinarily does not meet

London, August 6.—As the outcome of a five hours conference between representatives of the Government and of the Soviet, MM. Krassin and Kameneff have undertaken to communicate with Moscow and to request a reply before a conference, which is to be held on Sunday between Mr. Lloyd George, accompanied by Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, and M. Millerand and Marshal Foch, at Boulogne or Folkestone, when the Allies will finally decide on their attitude with regard to Russia.

DEMAND MORE POWER

London, August 6.—M. Kameneff, the Soviet delegate, has sent Mr. Lloyd George a communication which he has received from the Soviet Government, pointing out that Lord Curzon's note of July 20 and the Polish Foreign Minister's telegram to Moscow of July 22 both proposed negotiations "for an armistice and peace," but when the Polish delegates arrived at Baranovitchi, it was found that they were only empowered to deal with military problems and that their limited powers did not correspond to the tasks with which the conference of delegates was to deal in accordance with the proposals of both the British and Russian Governments.

The Soviet's essential demand, the communication proceeds, is for guarantees such as partial disarmament, cessation of recruiting, etc., which would prevent Poland using the period of the armistice for a renewal of hostilities.

CONTINUE OPERATIONS

International Law, the Soviet declares, by no means requires a suspension of operations before the conclusion of an armistice. Furthermore the continuance of the Bolshevik advance will in no way prejudge the nature of the peace treaty.

The note concludes by renewing the Soviet's pledge to respect Poland's independence and to grant Poland wider frontiers than those indicated by the Supreme Council and in the British note of July 20. Finally, the Soviet insists that the proposed London conference shall be solely between Soviet Russia and the leading Entente Powers.

The Polish Legation has issued a statement controverting several assertions contained in the Soviet's note, whereby the Soviet seeks to make the Poles responsible for the delays in connection with holding the armistice negotiations and for failing to furnish their armistice delegation with adequate powers to negotiate peace.

The Legation contends that the proposal to hold a Russo-Polish peace conference in London ruled out the latter necessity.

ADVANCE IS SLOW

Paris, August 5.—According to a telegram from Warsaw the Bolshevik advance is now less rapid. The Poles still occupy Ostrolenka, thus retaining possession of the Bronic-Warsaw Railway.

London, August 7.—Although it cannot yet be said that the Russian situation has passed the critical phase, there is at least a momentary relaxation of the tension, pending the momentous meeting of Mr. Lloyd George and M. Millerand tomorrow.

The Soviet delegates in London seem to have been impressed by the Government's obvious determination not to accept vague assurances and to pin them down to something definite. To this is attributed the comparatively conciliatory attitude which the Russian delegates displayed yesterday.

DEPENDS ON BOLSHEVIKI

But the whole issue turns upon when the Bolshevik army will cease to advance. The question of Warsaw therefore remains the real test of Bolshevik sincerity.

The Daily Chronicle is of opinion that the prospects of peace have improved.

The Daily News says that the Bolsheviki may possibly accept the Allied guarantee that Poland will not take advantage of the armistice to requip her armies.

The Daily Express in confirming the relaxation of tension says that the Government are not satisfied with Moscow's reply, but "it is plain that the Bolsheviki have not spoken the last word."

The Daily Mail says there are indications pointing to intention on the part of the government to accept in substance M. Kamaneff's proposals conveyed to Mr. Lloyd George yesterday.

The Times strikes a pessimistic note and utters a warning against "Kameneff's subtleties."

MEET RUSSIANS

London, August 7.—Field-Marshal Sir Henry Wilson and Mr. Bonar Law were present at the conference between the Soviet Government representatives and Mr. Lloyd George yesterday. After Sir Henry Wilson and Mr. Bonar Law had left, the Soviet representatives delayed their departure in order to draw up the message to Moscow, which was agreed upon. The British Ministers took the standpoint of the Soviet Representatives into careful consideration, but it may be taken that there has been and will be no receding from the Allied determination that Polish independence shall be safeguarded.

CHURCHILL REPLIES

London, August 7.—Mr. Winston Churchill replying to labor criticisms of his attitude towards Russia, says that he shares the people's dislike of war but that it is not the British who are making war but the Bolshevists, "who are at present trampling on Polish freedom and doing their best to light the flames of war in Persia, Afghanistan and India, while ruling their own people, even in their homes, with the iron rod of despotism."

Reception To Be Given Students En Route To America

More than 300 Chinese students, men and women, who are enroute to America to pursue their course of studies in the various colleges and universities, will arrive in Shanghai shortly. Plans are being made by different Chinese and foreign organisations for their entertainment during their stay here. The organisations planning on entertaining the students include the Kiangsu Educational Association, Western Returned Students' Union, World's Chinese Students' Federation, American University Club and the American Club.

The Committee having in charge the plans consists of Miss Mayling Soong, Dr. Y. Y. Tsu, P. K. Chu, M. T. Stauffer, and Don D. Patterson. At a recent meeting of the committee it was decided to hold a farewell reception on Friday, August 20, when a short program will be given, refreshments served and several addresses made. This is the first time that women are cooperating in giving the reception.

Obituary

MR. R. S. DOUGAL

Mr. R. S. Dougal, who has been prominent here in commercial circles for the past 18 years died yesterday at the Victoria Nursing Home after an illness of about six weeks. It had been thought that he was on the way to recovery when an attack of pneumonia set in and he succumbed to this.

Mr. Dougal came to Shanghai from South Africa following the South African war. He was a member of the Legion of Frontiersmen, and of the Cosmopolitan Masonic Lodge and of the Shanghai Scottish. He was a native of Scotland having come from a district near Glasgow. He is survived by a widow and a family that are in

Frisky Monkey Shines In Bird Store

Roscoe, a monkey in the animal store of C. H. Holden, New York City, got out of his cage and proceeded to pull some monkey shines. He opened all the bird cages in the store and threw goldfish about the place. He drew a crowd, which laughed heartily at his antics. Policemen, who forced their way into the shop, slid about the fish-covered floor and, after an hour's battle, captured Roscoe. The damage to the shop was estimated at $500.

SCHUHL APPOINTED U.S. COMMISSIONER

Mr. F. J. Schuhl, American attorney, has been appointed Commissioner of The United States Court for China and judge of the American Consular Court for the district of Shanghai.

As Commissioner he takes the place recently held by Mr. Nelson E. Lurton, who has gone to his home in America on leave.

Congress recently enacted legislation which provides that the Commissioner shall be ex-officio judge of the Consular Court of this district.

Mr. Schuhl will have his official office in the United States Court building.

Mlle. Le Roy In Dances At Del Monte

There was a very large attendance at the new Cafe Del Monte last night to witness the first appearance there of Mlle. le Roy, Parisienne singer and dancer. The artise was received with great favor, first in a song and then in a dance. The latter was called "The Vamp." Mlle. le Roy dressed it in red and gold with a silver bodice and it looked just as vampish as it sounds. This popular entertainer will appear at the Del Monte during the next four evenings.

ministry's authority have been removed." It appears that the Ministries of Communications and Education were recently at loggerheads with regard to the handling of the interest from the bank.

The Ministry of Education desired not to have China's capital withdrawn but to have it officially recognised as an education fund, the interest on which the ministry would receive direct instead of through the Ministry of Communications. The mandate clears up this point.

AGREEMENT MADE

When the Russo-Chinese Bank was established, the Russian and Chinese authorities concerned agreed that the interest on China's bonds should be devoted to education, notably to a government university and Russian college at Peking. China originally paid in $5,000,000, receiving in exchange proprietary bonds, on which the Russian Government guaranteed the interest. During the Russo-Japanese War the bank got into difficulties but was subsequently reconstructed, becoming the Russo-Asiatic Bank.

MANDATE WEDNESDAY

Peking, August 9.—The mandate, promulgating Chin Yung-peng's Cabinet, is expected on Wednesday. The doubtful portfolios will be settled before that date. This speedy settlement of the main question is principally due to General Chang Tso-lin, who is hurrying up matters.

General Sung Hsiao-lien, Director of the Chinese Eastern Railway, is expected in Peking tonight to attend a special conference on C.E.R. affairs.

The "Kou Shin Pao" and the "Min Shih Pao," edited by Kuang Yun-chin and Kang Shih-to respectively, have both been closed owing to the former Anfuite activities of the editors.

DISBANDING TROOPS

The disbandment of troops is proceeding with real success but the Government has decided to retain the services of a detachment of the 9th Division, which has rendered excellent service on the Siberian border since China's declaration of war with Germany. It will probably be used to guard the Chinese Eastern Railway at Heiho.

The congressional party is expected in Peking on Saturday. The United States minister, Mr. Crane, who has left Peitaho for Peking, will receive them.

The "Chen Pao" believes that the President will not punish Tsao Ju-lin or Lu Chengtin, dismiss Parliament or reprimand marshal Tuan Chi-jui.

Classes Resumed In Free School

The free school established by students of the Y.M.C.A. night school at San Wei Lee, Manchurian Road, resumed its classes Sunday night. On Saturday, a program of opening exercises was held at the school in the presence of several important members of the Students' Union.

Several speeches were made, Mr. Sun Tao-sung, head of the school, emphasised in his speech the importance of attending school regularly, of keeping the body clean, of serving the rules of the school and of preserving the property of the school.

Band Concert

The following program will, weather permitting, be played by the Band in the Hongkew Recreation Ground today, commencing at 5:30 p.m.:

A BANK IS THE SAFE PLACE TO "HIDE" MONEY!

Put your money in the bank, where it is not only safe, but where it earns interest for you. The following clipping from a Cleveland newspaper shows the risk of keeping money in private hiding places:

HIS $54 BOILS AWAY

Man Hides Money in Coffee Pot, Then Forgets

CLEVELAND, O.—Eugene Para reported to police Monday night that $54 of his savings which he had hidden in 2 coffee pots in his restaurant, had been stolen. Last night he assured the officers that it was all a mistake.

He explained the money was in a small coffee bag inside the pot. Forgetting the money, he said he placed the pot on a steaming radiator.

The coffee boiled over and with it the $54. "I've found the bag and the money behind the radiator," he said.

Reinsch And Arnold Both Optimistic; Are Honored By Chinese Collegians

Former Minister And Commercial Attache See Early Reconstruction Of China In New Movements; Are Guests At Successful Banquet

A note of optimism for the future of China was sounded by Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, former Minister to China and Mr. Julian Arnold, United States Commercial Attache, at a banquet held in their honor by American returned students at the Great Eastern Hotel Sunday night. Over 60 attended. Mr. Tang Shao-yi, Southern chief peace delegate, acted as toastmaster. Dr. Wu Chao-chu, son of the veteran statesman, Dr. Wu Ting-fang, delivered the principal address of welcome.

The function was unique as most of the hosts present were leaders in various lines of development. The toastmaster's introductory remarks pointed out the enthusiasm of the American returned students in honoring the two distinguished guests and said that the gathering clearly demonstrated the benefit of school as well as social education in the American colleges.

Dr. Wu said that since the arrival of Dr. Reinsch at Peking, not only the two governments but also the two peoples are brought together more closely than ever before. He attributed the accomplishment of the service and merit of Dr. Reinsch, who, he said, did this not by diplomacy, but by getting American financiers, captains of industry and educators to be more interested in things Chinese.

BRINGS AMERICANS HERE

The fact that so many American groups of bankers, travelers and politicians have come to China is due largely to Dr. Reinsch's efforts. In all dealings with the Government officials, Dr. Wu stated he was always courteous and considerate.

Coming to Mr. Arnold, Dr. Wu described him as one of the greatest authorities on China today. Many have heard him speak, while more have read his books. China could not have had a better publicity agent abroad than in Mr. Arnold, he said.

When Dr. Reinsch rose to speak, he was greeted with a prolonged round of applause.

"I cannot express my joy to be back in China," said Dr. Reinsch in part. "The real reason why I came was because of the recent writings and press reports which indicated a political condition which I wanted to see.

"I was too optimistic when I left. I thought true unity had already come to hand and that the withdrawal of the four leaders from the Military Government of Canton meant their union with the Central and West China. But I confess I was disappointed when I heard about the further split in the political parties when I arrived.—I have been told that the true union is as remote as ever.

UNION NOT FAR AWAY

"Personally I cannot yet believe that the union is far away. I am afraid conditions like this do fall into a pessimistic mood. But you men, the youth of the country, should decide to unite the nation and present a united front in political affairs. You should effect the union even at the risk of giving more power to your political opponent.

"Unity first and then lead the people to better their national life and the leaders are given too much mutual distrust in China and the leaders are given too little a chance."

Dr. Reinsch then compared at great length the treatment accorded the leaders of the two nations by their people. He asserted that China has a great many leaders who are worthy of the confidence of the people, but most of them are distrusted on account of certain personal defects, which need not be considered in the reconstruction of a nation.

"Your strength lies in the new knowledge of the young men of your country," continued the speaker. "Your institutions must necessarily be built up from low. Then your government will naturally improve."

Dr. Reinsch stated that his first impression of China was disappointing, because most of the leaders or educated men had their eyes on Governmental service. A returned student invariably goes up to Peking when he returns and tries to join the administration. Today, he said, he is a thorough optimist, because the young men are looking to government for his services and are more independent.

RETURNED STUDENTS

The returned student is more anxious to do something constructive. He will devote his service more to manufacturing, banking or industrial enterprises. This is what animates the hope of Dr. Reinsch.

Dr. Reinsch then stated that the American spirit in China is to see that some thing constructive is done and that Americans will willingly give their help when China needs them but are just as willing to withdraw when China no longer requires their services.

The speaker made complimentary references to the organisation of the 21 local societies in welcoming the Congressional party. He has a great confidence and hope in these organisations. At the same time, he emphasised the importance of giving support and loyalty to leadership. This is patriotism personified. Hero worship is a great element in the construction of a nation: men who have passed through the furnace of political machinery and have succeeded in maintaining their careers form a national asset. He pointed out that the support now being given by Chinese to their leaders is fragmentary and as a result, guiltless people often suffer public distrust.

"It is wrong to discredit a person for personal gains," he concluded. "Never was there such a stupendous task for young men and educated men. If only the young leaders co-operate in striving against the difficulties, prospects of China are most brilliant."

DEVELOPMENT OF CHINA

Mr. Arnold told of the receptive attitude of Americans of Chinese developments. The Chambers of Commerce in the United States are all interested in the Chinese trade conditions. Even the interior towns in the mid-West are enthusiastic in the possibilities in having commercial connections with China.

During his travels in the United States, Mr. Arnold addressed a large number of high schools, which were all very receptive, because most of them had very little chance of getting information on China.

The speaker pointed out that the time is now ripe to give the high schools in America something of Chinese art and literature. There are 1,500 Chinese students in American universities scattered all over the country. There is a splendid opportunity to help to give the American people the better phase of Chinese civilisation and to dispel the bad aspects of China.

ADVISES STUDY

Mr. Arnold has encouraged the Chinese students in America to be better organised for propaganda work, but he felt that this was not enough. Chinese students in America still lack the background of idea regarding practical conception of their knowledge. It is essential to link up the practical with the theoretical but the education of the Chinese is not sufficiently practical. They lack close contact with commercial organisations and social environments.

The Commercial Attache told his hearers that organised commerce and organised industries mean organised government. The former is essential to the latter. He paid a glowing tribute to such industrial leaders as Mr. H. Y. Moh, C. P. Yin and Chung Mungyew and Dr. Fong See in their organisation ability, and said that the same spirit is necessary in organising a government.

NEWSPAPERS ARE ACCORDED CREDIT FOR GREAT WORK

Imperial Conference Addressed By Governor General Of Canada

(Reuter's Service)

Ottawa, August 5.—The second meeting of the Imperial Press Conference was formally inaugurated here today by the Duke of Devonshire, Governor General of Canada, in the presence of the leaders of the Government and Opposition parties and other prominent Canadians.

The Governor General in the course of the inaugural address said that he hoped that the delegates during their visit would see something of the spirit which in peace and war had placed Canada in her proud position. He also hoped that the tour would convince the delegates of Canada's capacity valuably to contribute to the supply of paper. The Governor General added that he was convinced that the pressmen of the Empire would meet their responsabilities in preparing the way to brighter times.

CANADA'S PROUD POSITION

The Prime Minister of Canada and the Leader of the Opposition endorsed the Governor General's remarks.

Ottawa, August 5.—After the Duke of Devonshire's inaugural speech and Lord Burnham's reply, the Imperial Press Conference proceeded to business.

Mr. Robert Donald, Controlling Director of the Globe and other newspapers and formerly Editor of the Daily Chronicle, moved a resolution urging the necessity to increase cable communications and reduce rates for news messages.

Sir Roderick Jones, Chairman of Reuters, supported the resolution and recommended the appointment of a small committee to take up in London with the cable companies and authorities the question of extended cable facilities and reduced rates.

DISCUSS RATES

After further discussion, it was decided to redraft the resolution in terms of the various motions submitted, for consideration at tomorrow's session.

Mr. Crosbie Roles (Ceylon) presented a resolution declaring that the Empire and the world should be provided with the advantages of wireless telegraphic and telephonic communication.

Mr. Makepeace (Singapore) supported the motion, which was adopted unanimously.

Ottawa, August 6.—The Imperial Press Conference today discussed the improvement of cable facilities and unanimously adopted the following resolution:

"The Conference is strongly of opinion that it has become necessary to secure forthwith facilities for better, quicker and cheaper conveyance of news throughout the Empire, and calls upon the Empire Press Union to take immediate steps to attain this end.

BETTER CABLE SERVICE

It considers that the governments of the United Kingdom and the self-governing Dominions and India should be urged to use their influence to increase cable communication and reduce the rates for news messages, so as to ensure the fullest interchange of news and opinion within the Empire, the Governments to assist in such provision, such assistance, however, to be limited to providing increased and cheaper cable, wireless and other facilities.

Further, should any such assistance be given, it should appear specifically in the estimates of public expenditure. The Conference is of opinion that the full utility of cable and wireless communications as a factor in educating and maintaining good understanding between all the peoples of the Empire will not be attained until rates, irrespective of distance are reduced to a uniform charge of a penny per word for press message throughout the Empire."

A supplementary resolution was also passed pledging the delegations of the various Dominions to urge their respective Governments to take immediate action on the foregoing resolution.

GERMANS GIVEN CHANCE TO JOIN NATIONS' LEAGUE

Austrians Also Invited To Take Part In Conferences

WILL DISCUSS FINANCE

Balance Sheets To Be Asked From Accounting Heads Of Each Country

(Reuter's Service)

San Sebastian, August 5.—The Council of the League of Nations has decided that the International Financial Conference which is to meet at Brussels shall be held in the last week of September.

Thirty States, including Germany and Austria, will take part. The invitation of the two latter is tantamount to a notice that they will be accepted as members of the League, if they apply for admission.

ASK BALANCE SHEETS

Each Government will be asked to present a balance sheet and to renounce the further issue of paper money.

A commission of experts will attempt to arrive at an equitable arrangement of exchange with Germany and Austria.

The Council yesterday considered the finances of the League, which appears partly to be living on overdrafts at the bank. It is stated that the League's expenses are £40,000 a month, and are growing.

Analysis Of World Trade Condition

British Official Reports Indicate Plentiful Meat Supply; Sugar Shortage

London, June 30.—The world shortage of vital supplies may be briefly summarised from British official reports as follows:

Wheat—No difficulties are expected by England in obtaining sufficient supplies, because the competition for world's supplies will depend upon the purchasing power of European countries, most of whom are forced to restrict purchases far below normal needs owing to lack of credits. For instance, Italy has cut down cereal imports to half those of last year. Britain has the strongest purchasing power in Europe, and it is depreciated by 20 percent.

Meat—A glut rather than a shortage of imported meat is expected for England, who, because of her financial position, will be the buyer for most of Europe.

Wool—No scarcity is expected except for the finer varities. Australian and New Zealand clips up to the middle of 1920 have been bought by the British government, and negotiations are proceeding for later supplies.

Paper—There is a heavy paper-pulp shortage in Norway, Sweden and Canada, the principal producing countries today. This is due to rapid development and enlargement of newspapers since the armistice and the great demand for Canadian pulp in the United States. British papers will soon be forced to reduce their size. Ninety percent of them already are less than half the size of American newspapers.

Coal—Production both in England and continental Europe is under pre-war amount, but there is no question of a serious shortage in England, where exports are controlled and can be limited still further. But the price is mounting owing to continual wage demands.

Eloquent Speakers Heard At Convention At Kuling

(China Press Correspondence)

Kuling, August 3.—Scarcely ever has a Convention at Kuling been so well attended or claimed the attention of the community so generally as that just ended. The Convention Committee was fortunate in being able to secure such convention speakers as Rev. W. H. Griffith Thomas, D.D., Rev. Lewis Hodous, D.D., Miss Christine Tinding together with some of the leading missionaries and Chinese Christian workers.

Doctor Thomas gave a most interesting series of addresses on the general theme: "Grounds of Certainty." He undertook to show that despite the attacks on the fundamental conservative views as generally held by the Christian Church fifty years ago, those tenets of belief still remain certain. Whether he succeeded in his attempt is a question which would be answered differently by different auditors. Yet it will be conceded by all, I think, that his array of facts and arguments supported by conservative scholarship challenge the most thoughtful consideration of all lovers of truth, radical as well as conservative.

LECTURE SUBJECTS

The subjects of Dr. Thomas' daily lectures were "The Person of Christ," "Death of Christ," "Resurrection of Christ," "The Christian Church," "The Bible and Christian Experience."

Dr. Thomas held his audience throughout the week, which is unusual for a convention speaker at Kuling, and when he gave his closing message to the Kuling Community on Sunday, August 1, the Kuling Church was packed to its capacity.

Dr. Thomas will be remembered by all who heard him, both those who agree with his conclusions and those who do not, as a scholarly, saintly men, extremely considerate of those unable to agree with him and courteous to those who challenge his statements.

The two addresses given by Dr. Hodous were of special interest to many. His studies and observations of the Buddhism ought to be known by all who seek to lead the Chinese to Christ.

MIN TINLING SPEAKS

On Wednesday morning, Miss Christine Tinling held the convention's thought as she told of her work in Scientific Temperance education in both England and America and outlined the purpose of her coming to China under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. of America. This work is claiming the attention of Christian Men and Women in China now as never before.

Among the other topics for the convention were "The China for Christ" movement and the proposed Christian Convention of 1921. No session of the Convention was more filled with interest that the Saturday morning Missionary Meeting when Miss Christian Tsai of Nanking, Rev. Ding Li-mei, Miss Chen of the Yunnan Mission and Rev. G. G. Warren of Changsha were the speakers.

It is evident that the day of really good Conventions at Kuling is not past, for we had one such this year.

ECONOMY OF THE BICYCLE

Saves Nearly $78,000,000 A Year To American Workers

It is estimated that the bicycle effects a yearly saving of nearly $78,000,000 among American working men and saving amounts to $6,486,400 for each woman. Every day of the year working people who ride bicycles to and from their work retain in their pocke's a total of $249,400 in saved carfares reckoned at five cents a fare.

There are 2,900,000 bicycles in use now in the United States, according to the latest figures available. More than three-fourths, or 86 percent, of the owners use their bicycles as a means of transportation to their work and home again after work. These 2,494,000 cyclists save $77,812,000 a year, reckoning each one's daily saving at the reasonable rate of ten cents a day. All this amount saved in dollars and cents, to say nothing of the benefit from the standpoint of health of the individuals.

Bicycles are in greater demand in Japan now than ever before, according to the American Consul, H. F. Hawley, stationed at Nagoya, Japan, who says that country offers a big export field for American bicycle manufacturers. There is a monthly demand for from 6,000 to 8,000 bicycles which Japanese manufacturers are unable to supply. Orders for English wheels and parts cannot be be filled promptly, nor can future deliveries be assured. Consul Hawley reports that the Japanese do not like any startling originalities in construction. They prefer a black-framed wheel, more of the sturdy, heavy English type than the light American type. Hilly roads and peculiar traffic conditions require a free wheel with reliable rim brakes and mud guards both on front and rear wheels. Coast brakes are not popular, and there is practically no use in Japan for single tube tires. The stature of the average Japanese is reflected in advice that frames be 20 or 21 inches high. The average gear desired is comparatively low, about 68.

Another field offered to the American manufacturer of bicycles is South Africa, according to Vice-Consul Charles Allen of Cape Town. At present no American makes are to be found among the stocks in the Cape Town consular district, virtually all being made by British manufacturers. Sentiment and the fact that a great part of the population is of British extraction, entirely familiar with the "home" trade-marks is apparently the cause for the predominance of the British make. However, there is another very strong reason and that is that the British manufacturers have standardised their products so that the parts of various makes of bicycles are interchangeable, thus making it possible for a firm handling a certain make of machine to dispose of spare parts to persons having purchased another make. This is also of obvious advantage to the purchaser. The Japanese manufacturers, also, are now placing bicycles on the market there with interchangeable parts, and by doing so are increasing their competition with British manufacturers.

ed him and formally requested him to leave. Mr. Devlin still remained obdurate, whereupon the Chairman named him and sent for the Speaker, after which Mr. Edward Shortt, the Home Secretary, moved his suspension.

Prior to this scene, the House rejected by 216 votes to 68 an amendment, limiting the operation of the Bill to one year after the termination of the war or after the passing of the Act.

Sir Hamar Greenwood said that it was impossible to limit the duration of the Bill, until order had been restored in Ireland, but he hoped that it would be possible to repeal it before the period suggested. He emphasised that the Bill only applied to parts of Ireland in which the Irish Executive was of the opinion that special tribunals were necessary.

MEASURE PASSED

The Chief Secretary said that he desired most sincerely to carry on without the application of this drastic measure, except where it was essential.

Replying to a suggestion that a bill for an indefinite period would cause misapprehension in the Dominions and in the United States, Sir Hamar Greenwood said that in his opinion the Dominions and the United States had such an intimate knowledge of the Irish situation that the Bill would in no way perturb them.

The House passed the third reading of the Bill by 205 Votes to 18.

JAPANESE TENNIS PLAYERS GIVE SPLENDID EXHIBITIONS ON COURTS OF PORTUGUESE AND FRENCH CLUBS

Defeated By Both Clubs, But Put Up Sterling Battles, Giving Big Audiences Many A Thrill—One Unfinished Doubles Match To Be Played Off This Afternoon

By "Forehand"

The Japanese tennis team representing Keiho University, which has been playing a series of exhibitions in Shanghai during the past days, gave some brilliant exhibitions of the courts-game on Sunday and Monday afternoons, against the teams of the Portuguese Sporting Association and the Cercle Sportif Francais.

Although the young Nipponese were unable, in either case, to score a win over their opponents, they showed themselves to be well-versed in the arts of the tennis game, and frequently drew generous applause from the galleries for some splendid bit of court strategy.

With a "lose" to the S. R. C. and a "win" over S. C. C. to their credit, the Japanese team went into the fray against the Portuguese players on Sunday afternoon full of "win, wigor and witality." The weather was ideal and a large crowd was out to see the sport.

Messrs. R. Canavarro and (Capt.) E. Leitao, of the local team, started things off by scoring a victory over Messrs. Matsubara and Harada, after losing the first two sets. The final scores were 2-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3. Some very fine tennis was played during this exhibition.

Odakira and Kimura (Keiho) evened things up in the second rubber by downing Messrs. R. Roberts and G. Silva. This match also went to five sets, the final scores being 4-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-3.

In the final rubber, which decided the match, Messrs. Komari and Hasotani opposed Messrs. A. A. and A. R. Leitao, only to lose in straight sets, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3. The Portuguese Club thereby won the match, two rubbers to one.

AT THE FRENCH CLUB

A large gathering assembled at the French Club yesterday evening to see the visiting players perform against the court-experts of that organisation.

The first match to begin—and the last to finish, uncompleted—was between Messrs. Elmore and Touissant (C. S. F.) and Messrs. Odakira and Kimura (Keiho). So evenly were these four players matched that, after they had struggled through four sets to a tie, darkness prevented a final deciding encounter. It is hoped that this can be played off this afternoon.

Meanwhile, Messrs. McEachran and Sheldon tangled with Messrs. Matsubara and Harada, and, after losing the first set, managed to score a brilliant win, 3-6, 7-5, 6-1, 6-2. The French team, by steady and concerted play, wore down their opponents, who only managed to take three games out of the last fifteen played.

Messrs. Gulick and Knowles then took on Messrs. Komari and Hasotani and, playing wonderful tennis, succeeded in defeating the collegians in straight sets, 6-4, 6-0, 6-4.

TODAY'S MATCHES

This afternoon, beginning at five o'clock, the singles players of the two clubs will endeavor to settle the question of individual superiority. Sheldon, McEachran and Touissant will oppose three Japanese players yet to be named.

Tomorrow afternoon, on the courts of the Portuguese Sporting Association, another singles tournament will be played, between the P. S. C. and the Japanese collegians.

'Amateur' Horse Wins Championship

An unusual incident of the recent Westchester County Horse Show was the winning of the heavyweight saddle championship by a horse that had never taken a first prize until he took the championship. Old timers declared they had never known such a thing to happen before.

Magnum, the horse in question, evidently grew on the judges as the show progressed. Entered by the mistake of his owner, Samuel Keller Jacobs, as Midget, he was placed second to Myopia (Gold Ball), in the novice class on the opening day.

On the second day he was second again in the class for horses suitable to become hunters, and also in the model class for saddle horses.

On the closing day Ben Dale beat him for the third time in the open class for saddle horses over 15.2 hands, but when it came to the championship the judges reversed all the previous decisions by placing Magnum first and Ben Dale reserve.

Plan To Stage Big Bout At Coney Island

Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier may battle for the championship of the world on Thanksgiving Day at Coney Island. Representatives of the two pugilists will meet to discuss an offer said to have been made for the fight. Charles Harvey, former secretary of the New York State Boxing Commission, will attend the conference in the interests of the promoters and will make an offer said to be near the half-million mark. The plan calls for the construction at the famous seaside resort of the largest arena ever built for such a purpose, and while figures are not obtainable, there will be a seating capacity of at least 50,000. The entire structure, according to the plans, which have been drawn and approved by the Building Department of New York, will be of glass.

You Tell 'Em!

Those league-wrecking Yankees, in beating the Washington Senators, 17 to 0, scored 14 of their runs in one inning—major league record!

You tell 'em, Harry, and speak Lauder!

—Wandering Jim.

There is beauty in everything. Maybe, some day somebody will find some of it in a spectacle of a lady straddling the rear seat of a motorcycle.

You tell 'em, referee, I'm going out!

A new country club, which will be opened next October, near Los Angeles, under the management of the Ambassador Hotel, will be known as the "Rancho Country Club."

You tell 'em, footpad, I'll hold you up!

"Jack" Mookley of Cornell University has been chosen as chief coach of the American Olympic team.

You tell 'em, electric button, I'm hard-pressed.

Benny Leonard, lightweight champion of the world, recently disposed of Charlie White, a dangerous contender, in the ninth round of a scheduled 12-round contest.

You tell 'em, June Bug! Katy did!

A lot of American League infielders claim there is too much life in the ball. Showing that digging up an alibi is easier than digging up a grounder.

You tell 'em barber, I can't scrape up an acquaintance

Infielder Roy Grimes, of the Bridgeport club of the Eastern League, has been purchased by the Giants.

You tell 'em, solder, I'm misled!

An 18 years old golfer is the new women's golf champion of Great Britain. Miss Joyce Wethered of the Worplesdon Club, Sheringham, recently defeated Miss Cecil Leitch in the final round of play in the tournament held over the Sheringham links.

You tell 'em, ricksha, I'm two-tired!

This ball game thing is getting to be a joke. If the alleged "Regulars" don't want to show up, why not transfer their title and prerogatives to the Bolsheviki?

FAMOUS PLAYERS OF THE DIAMOND NOT ALWAYS GOOD

Veterans Often Started Off Weakly And Improved By Close Study

In referring to the displacement of vibrant youth by decrepit old age here and there along the line, we might add to the names of Jim Vaughn, "Babe" Adams, Jack Quinn and the other tottering old wrecks of the diamond by calling passing attention to the name of Frank Kramer, twenty-five years in the professional bicycle-racing game, who has won seven consecutive match races this year against the best foreign talent; and to Jack Britton, the thirty-five-year-old welterweight champion.

Some more or less knowing experts of our national pastime declare that "good hitters are born, and not made." Maybe they are, but how do they explain the fact that "Babe" Ruth hit only .231 and made only one home run during his only minor league engagement at Baltimore, and was up here for two or three seasons before he learned how to hit?

CHANGED HIS STYLE

Or that Rogers Hornsby hit only .232 with Denison, in a Class B league, and then went to St. Louis, where somebody changed his style at the plate, and has been slamming ths missile around the top of the National League averages ever since?

Or that Zach Wheat hit only .226 with Mobile in 1908 and .245 in 1909, but has usually been found around the top of the National League list every October since he arrived in the big towns.

Yes, "good hitters are born and not made," just like they say "marriages are made in Heaven," when, in reality, they are made in the back parlor with the lights turned so all-fired low that a fellow can't see what he is getting.

HOW THEY LEARNED

Bancroft couldn't hit a lick, even in the minors, until somebody turned him around and started him batting left-handed; and Gavvy Cravath was a failure at hitting big league pitching until one day, when he was with the Red Sox, Larry Lajoie told him to try standing away back in the box and taking a full, free swing at the ball.

Good hitters have to have some natural ability—but so does a brick-layer.

The guy who said that "all things come to him who waits" may have been a good waiter, but he never had to wait for five years to get out of the cellar.

If Detroit persists in its frenzied efforts to dig its way through the basement floor, and the Philadelphia Athletics keep on trying the same, Hughey Jennings and Connie Mack may yet meet beside the old "treasure vault," without a key!

OH, WHAT'S THE USE?

When the news came over the wire that "Babe" Ruth had made three more home runs and one of them had smashed the clock in the faraway center field at the Polo Grounds, New York, a discussion arose as to how many home runs Ruth would make if he were playing at the Phillies' park.

It was finally decided that it all depended on how many times he didn't get a base on balls, the probable number being obtained by subtracting the passes from the number of times at bat.

If that bird played at the Phillies' park he'd ruin the real estate value for two squares north of Lehigh Avenue.

This column is open to all "Old-Timers."

Don't you remember some great football game, or tennis match, baseball, golf, cricket, rowing, swimming or boxing contest you have witnessed—some big sporting event in a reminiscence of which our readers would be interested?

Send in your signed story! If you have a picture of the principles, or of the event itself, send it along. Let's make "Once upon a Time" a big Far Eastern feature!

This is a reminiscence of a streak of light, attached to a triple turbine generator and wrapped in a covering of brown horse-flesh.

The streak's name was "Short Grass' and he was imported from England to America some five years ago by Emil Hertz, a prominent New York horseman, who had bought him for next to nothing to complete a bargain for a much higher-priced but less able "whizzer."

"Short Grass," son of Laveno-Outburst, was not notable for the number of races he won in America from the time of his first until Owner Hertz retired him to his stud farm. It was his remarkable ability to come from behind—from an apparently hopeless, helpless position far in the ruck—and give the leaders a chase for their lives, oftimes nipping them at the wire by a nose or a head.

"Short Grass" never seemed to be able to develop any early speed. Time after time we would see him trailing his field by a furlong or so, only to come to life when three-quarters of the race had been run, and fairly leave all but the speediest as though rooted to the ground.

Take the Suburban Handicap of 1916, for example. In that classic "Short Grass" was arrayed against the afterwards famous Stromboli, Hallenbeck's great Friar Rock, the already-famous "whizzer," The Finn, Harry Payne Whitney's Sharpshooter and a fairly reliable skate called Hauberk.

As the sextet emerged from the "chute" at Belmont Park, Short Grass looked to be hopelessly out of the running. The further the mile-and-a-quarter chase went, the further the son of Laveno-Outburst dropped behind.

Then came the last three furlongs. The hosses were well strung out by this time, with Short Grass a very bad last. Suddenly he exploded. All we saw was a brown splash, as though someone had suddenly wielded a huge paint-brush over the picture of the finish.

No, Short Grass didn't win the race—Friar Rock was too far ahead and too good a horse—but he finished second to that remarkable son of Rock-Sand-Fairy Gold, five lengths in front of Stromboli and more yet ahead of The Finn, Sharpshooter and Hauberk.

Later, at Empire City, Short Grass did beat Friar Rock, and by exactly the same methods. Furthermore, he ran right over a field composed of the mighty Roamer, the reliable Spur, Stromboli, Dick Williams, Friar Rock, Gainer, Slumber II and Trial By Jury, which finished in the order named.

But it was at Aqueduct track, down on Long Island, where Short Grass did his most sensational work. The Aqueduct stretch is a long one—about three-eighths of a mile—and it was down that fairway that Short Grass was won't to fling himself like a rifle-bullet, spreading dismay and consternation as he passed thoroughbred after thoroughbred on his way to the wire. It was on this course that he broke the world's record for the mile, negotiating the distance in 1:35 flat.

Horses may come and horses may go, but those whirlwind finishes of the imported Short Grass will remain in my memory as long as that evanescent quality remains.

Chess Champion Yields His Title

Amsterdam, June 26.—The decision of Dr. Emanuel Lasker to yield his title of world's champion chess player to Jose R. Capablanca, the Cuban expert, instead of playing a match they had arranged, was made known in a letter he wrote Capablanca in which he said:

"From various facts I must infer that the chess world does not like the conditions of our agreement. I cannot play the match knowing that its rules are widely unpopular. I therefore resign the title of world's champion in your favor. You have earned the title, not by the formality of a challenge, but by your brilliant mastery. In your further career I wish you much success."

Writing to the Telegraaf, Dr. Lasker says he would have preferred to lose his title in a keen fight with Capablanca, thus finishing his career logically.

LOCAL BASEBALL TEAMS ONCE MORE DISAPPOINT BIG SUNDAY CROWD; NEWSPAPERS DEMAND INVESTIGATION

"U.S.S. Monocacy" Aggregation, Thrashed On Saturday, Fails To Appear For Scheduled Contest And Only Handful Of "Regulars" And "Bolshies" Show Up

By Viola Verclaire

Shanghai baseball fans who have put up their good money to insure the success of the sport in this city are pretty well disgusted with the way the schedules are being conducted just now. This is especially true after Sunday afternoon's fiasco—another of many—when upwards of three hundred lovers of America's national sport assembled at the Race Course diamond, only to have another game fail to materialise.

The management of the alleged "Regulars" declares that it is next to impossible to persuade volunteer baseball players to turn out for games at this season of the year. In that case it has been suggested that a postponement of a few weeks be announced, rather than, time after time, have the fans journey to the ball-park, only to be disappointed—or, at best, to see a game with coolies filling in the outfield positions.

There are several sincere, hard-working players on both the "Regulars" and "Bolsheviki" ball clubs, and it does seem that one good team, which would show up for games, could be made up of these young men. With the Tientsin and possibly a Manila series being planned, some concerted action is due the fans.

A MISERABLE SHOWING

There were only a handful of Shanghai players out for Sunday's projected game; and the team from the U.S.S. Monocacy didn't even bother to send a representative to say that the sailor boys were so sore in mind, body and estate, after their 17-to-1 defeat at the hands of the Union Club on Saturday that they couldn't make the grade.

This all helped the sport a lot. Today the "Regulars" and "Bolsheviks" are scheduled to tangle in the fourth game of their inter-club series, which now stands at two wins for the "Trotskys" and one for the "Upson Downs." It is sincerely hoped that the game, which is supposed to start at five balls, will materialise.

THE TIENTSIN SERIES

Preparations for the series against the 15th Infantry team from Tientsin, which is scheduled for the latter part of this month or first of next, are proceeding apace. This team is a real honest-to-goodness baseball outfit, with excellent pitchers as ever'thing: and it behooves the locals to do some real work if they want to make a representative showing against the doughboys.

Cricket In England

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 6.—County cricket:

Sussex beat Essex by an innings and 40 runs.

Gloucestershire beat Hampshire by 193 runs. Hampshire scored only 36 in the first innings and 55 in the second. Parker for Gloucestershire took 8 wickets for 33 runs and Mills 11 wickets for 50 runs.

Leicestershire v. Yorkshire abandoned.

Warwickshire beat Worcestershire by an innings and 340 runs. Warwickshire scored 603 runs for 9 wickets and declared.

Middlesex beat Kent by 5 runs.

'PARSON' DAVIES DEAD

Chicago, June 29.—Word was received here today of the death of Charles Edward ("Parson") Davies, well known in the sporting world, at Bedford, Va., yesterday. The body will be brought here for burial.

Davies came into prominence in the early '80s as manager of Dan O'Leary, the champion walker. He afterward took over the management of Peter Jackson, colored heavyweight champion, and under Davies's direction Jackson fought a draw with James Corbett lasting 60 rounds.

Paris, June 28.—Gaby Deslys's ...wels were sold at auction in ...aris this afternoon and fetched ...303,900 francs. Even at the ...esent rate of exchange, this sum ...s said to represent nearly ...00,000. Except for the auc...neer's percentage, the whole ...mount will go, according to the ...rms of the dancer's will, to the ...mediate relief of the poor of ...r native city, of Marseilles, to ...hich she left almost the whole ... her fortune.

To Gaby's gay Paris it was ...ther miserable and materialistic ...siness, this sale of the glorious ...rnaments of the one time joyous ...ancer. One thought of the ...endid purpose to which she had ...illed the proceeds, but even tha... ...d not relieve the depressed at...osphere of a baking gallery in ...hich several hundred dealers and curious members of the public had gathered.

It certainly did not influence by one jot or tittle the careful estimating of worth and profit by dealers from every country who were buyers. Most of the jewels were sold under their estimated value, though occasionally one ran over higher and there was hot bidding between the two sides of the room.

The sale began with the less valuable jewels, but even of these the cheapest, a bracelet and ring of gold, with elephant's hair as a charm, fetched 1,800 francs.

A belt and clasp made of American gold pieces, of which seventeen were of $20 "eagles" linked with gold links, fetched 4,100 francs. It was undoubtedly a bargain, for the gold dollars themselves, both in currency value and as metal, are worth more.

The first big figure reached was 30,000 francs for a platinum net bag with a band of brilliants and clasp of pearls and brilliants. It also was cheap at the price.

Greatest interest was shown in the price that would be paid for Gaby's famous pearls. The long sautoir of 154 pearls, weighing 1,389 grammes; was sold for 280,000 francs, and three necklaces of 49, 59 and 79 pearls, for 462,300 francs, 354,100 francs and 238,000 francs respectively. The necklace with the smallest number of pearls fetched the highest price, but its 49 pearls weighed nearly as much as those of the larger number and were far finer in quality.

Most magnificent of all the collection, but disappointing in the price it brought, was a wonderful platinum collar, on which was fixed a giant brilliant and four immense button pearls. From the central brilliant hung a great black pearl weighing 140 grammes, and from the sides hung two pendant white pearls of nearly equal size and weight.

This piece of jewelry, which was at the same time magnificent and yet simple in design, was valued at 500,000 francs, and the bidding began at 300,000. For a time it went briskly, but the value being more in the design than in the stones it failed to reach the estimated mark, and the auctioneer with difficulty raised the bidding to 402,000 francs.

The lucky buyer's name was Lindon, and it is understood that he was a buyer for a private client.

PICTURES TELL WAR STORY

National Muscum Opens Permanent Exhibit Of Stirring Life Studies

Washington, June 22.—The story of the American Expeditionary Force is told in pictures on the walls of the National Museum here in a permanent exhibit just opened to the public.

Drawn from life in paint, pen and ink or pencil by American artists commissioned and sent to the front for that purpose the collection of nearly 500 studies detailing almost every phase of life in the army overseas is spread over the walls of half a dozen great, well-lighted rooms. It is a tale of stirring action which they disclose.

Among the scenes depicted are ruined French villages made sacred forever to Americans because of American blood freely given to tear them from German hands. There are the homely, appealing scenes from behind the lines with happy-go-lucky youngsters of Pershing's division in billets mixing among the people of France, the very old and the very young people. Here and there are grim reminders of the great tragedy in groups of huddled dead in wrecked enemy trenches over which the tide of victory had poured. Again, half glimpsed through a downpour of rain, a trudging, sodden infantry column is moving onward through a sea of mud as the artist saw it; or an endless line of weary gun teams drags forward the batteries to blast the road to triumph.

At one point the artist caught and held for his fellow-countrymen the breathless tensity of a forest outpost, peering through the leafy screen of his covert toward the enemy lines, his rifle hugged close with fingers clinched about the trigger; at another a slash of light from a half-opened door has painted on the screen of night just a hint at a column, tramping on toward battle; just a young face or two in the line, weary, dirty but with jaws grim set with purpose. Again, it is a hospital that has gripped the artist imagination, a twisted, soldier writhing from under the tumbled blanket with agony in every line and over him the steady-eyed surgeon or the merciful of an army nurse.

In rooms around the picture display are shown all the countless things with which the army and the navy dealt in the war; the guns, the bombs, the uniforms of ally and enemy alike, captured weapons and Germany war gear of many kinds. These form a striking setting for the epic tale the war artists have pictured, probably the only such record ever assembled for it began with the army and runs on to the departure of the homeward transports at the close.

Artists who made the pictures, all of whom held the rank of Captain in the American Expeditionary Force, include Wallace Morgan Ernest Peixotto, Julius Andre Smith, Harry E. Townsend, Harvey Dunn, Walter J. Duncan, all of New York City; William J. Aylward, Fairport, N. J., and George M. Harding, Wynnewood, Pa.

Children Cry for Fletcher's

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is particularly a preparation for Infants and Children made agreeable to the taste, acceptable to the stomach and pleasant in its action. It has been in use for over thirty years and has always been one of the most highly esteemed of all cathartic preparations. It has one great advantage over other preparations of its kind in that while it opens the organs readily and completely, it does not have a tendency to produce subsequent constipation so much to be dreaded.

It was only after years of research in the fields of herbs and roots for a combination of purely vegetable matter that would have all the virtues of Castor Oil, without its disagreeable, nauseating properties, especially when used for infants or children, that the formula used in Fletcher's Castoria was found, and which for over 30 years has proven its worth. Try it.

Save the Babies.

Infantry mortality is something frightful. We can hardly realise that of all the children born in civilised countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, thirty seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one half before they are fifteen! We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestion, sickness, death. To avoid any possibility of giving your child opiates, or narcotics of any kind, keep Fletcher's Castoria in the house, and Save the Babies.

Of Taxicabs, Planks, Booms And Other Foolish Things

BY IRVIN S. COBB

San Francisco, June 27.—If these despatches from the front should break off suddenly before the convention ends, I wish to ask the editor of this paper to fill out the space allotted to me through the week with pleasing obituary notices. Should the messages quit coming through that will serve as a sign that I am, alas, no more.

I would therefore take advantage of this opportunity to state that I had a good disposition, was born a Democrat, served as a war correspondent in Flanders and also through several Kentucky elections and enjoyed an excellent reputation up until the time I began reporting National Conventions. Fuller details of the life of the deceased and the hour for the funeral will be supplied by the press associations. I try not to be morbid but something seems to tell me that if I am not killed in one of San Francisco's taxicabs I shall be killed under one of them.

The youth who has been driving me about is a lineal descendant of the late Ben Hur and carries a picture of Barney Oldfield in his watch. He assures me he is a careful driver, but I am loath to believe this, because this morning within the space of half a mile he missed three pedestrians, yet with the proper care in aiming he should have destroyed all three of them utterly.

IS FRIENDLY ANYWAY

There is nothing stand-offish or formal about the local taxicabbist. Before he has known you five minutes he is calling you "Say, Bill," and is chatting genially with you over his shoulder, as he goes careening about corners on one wheel or coasts down a steep hill at such a rate of speed that you can feel the taxi slipping right out from under you. I call him a taxicabbist to distinguish him more clearly from a taxidermist. A taxidermist skins things which others have killed. A taxicabbist provides his own dead.

I am becoming really attached to the youth who drives me. Sharing so many hairbreadth escapes together has drawn us closer to each other. I only hope that after the dread summons comes it will be possible to tell us apart.

Pending extinction I might as well join the innumerable caravan of writers who are telling the news as they find it or as they make it up out of their own heads, as the case may be and generally is. At this moment chief interest appears to center in the platform. One of the most foolish things about that incredibly foolish and cumbersome feature of American life which is called a National Convention, has to do with the platform, so called.

Several thousand humid, irritable gentlemen gather in a convention town and worry themselves into a free lather over the exact phraseology of this or that plank in a platform, when all the while they should know, if they know anything at all, that through the campaign the voters at large won't care a hoot about it and that the party to which they belong probably will utterly ignore the pledges to which it stands committed in the event of victory in the general election to follow.

It may be recalled that eight years ago a President was elected by the Democrats on a platform favoring single terms for Presidents. That same President is now completing his second term and in some quarters there is talk of nominating him for a third.

Take the present situation. This evening, twelve hours before the convention starts its opening session, the principal argument is whether the solutions should contain a wet plank or a dry plank or no plank at all touching on the Prohibition question.

The disputants are taking it with deadly seriousness, but to an onlooker the whole thing resolves itself into a mastodonic joke. If a private poll of individuals were taken, it is safe to assume that 90 percent of the delegates here assembled would favor a greater or lesser modification of the present laws touching on beverages. And it is highly possible that, feeling personally as they do, they nevertheless will go on public record as indorsing the Eighteenth Amendment or that they will follow the courageous example set by the Republicans at Chicago and altogether omit from their platform any direct mention of the one issue which is uppermost today in the minds of the American people generally. Alongside of politicians, guinea pigs are daredevils.

In booms I am able to report a general bullish movement. McAdoo is holding his own on the strength of the claims that he will appeal to the electors both East and West. He lives in the East and out in the West he once put on a pair of "Doug" Fairbanks pants and rode clear across the range of a moving picture camera.

AS TO OTHER BOOMS

The Cox rooters from Ohio arrived on a special train and are active. The Hon. Frank Garvan of New York has reached here to operate the pulmotor in behalf of the boom for Attorney General Palmer, who is running on the slogan "He laid down on the law," or maybe it's "He laid down the law."

The chief trouble with Garvan is that, being a person of means, he has to stay under cover most of the time. An Eastern man with wealth certainly is handicapped these days at a National Convention of either party. The Republicans take it away from him and the Democrats accuse him of being tainted by Wall Street influences. The Meredith or alfalfa boom appears to be about ready for harvesting. A gentlemen named Davis is also being spoken of. We did not get his first name.

There is a slight undercurrent of favor for Herb Hoover, who enjoys the unique distinction of being popular with either party so long as he is suspected of belonging to the other. There is even a little talk of Gen. John J. Pershing, on the ground that he would appeal to the ex-service men and might split Senator Warren of Wyoming.

But to other dark horses I would say reassuring that they need have no fear of the budding Pershing candidacy. As a military model the General is of a commanding aspect, but as a politician I don't—well, you can sum it up in a line: "Lafayette, he ain't there."

NEW CHANCELLOR

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 5.—It is officially announced that the King has appointed Viscount Buxton to be Chancellor of the Order of Saint Michael and Saint George in succession to Lord Landsdowne, who has resigned on the grounds of ill-health.

Test Bullet-Proof Glass

Siccawei Weather Reports

8.—The typhoon continues to advance towards the Loochoos, between two anticyclones, the one in N. Japan, the other on the Philippines. Vast cyclonic circulation on the Pacific, hard in the evening at Formosa, with showers. Very fine day at Shanghai, cooler owing to the oceanic depression; very hot at Tientsin.

WHEN BABY IS CROSS AND SLEEPLESS

When baby is cross and sleepless there is something wrong and the little one is taking the only means he has of telling it. Under such circumstances the temptation to administer a sleeping draught, or opiate of some kind, is often great, but don't do it unless expressly ordered by a competent doctor who has seen the child. Instead give him Baby's Own Tablets, which are guaranteed to contain no opiates; they send the child to sleep simply because they remove the causes of his sleeplessness and make him feel good and comfortable.

"My baby was not feeling well and was cross and troublesome. I gave her several doses of Baby's Own Tablets and they did her so much good that I would not be without them for many times the amount they cost. I strongly advise every mother to give them a fair trial," writes Mrs. F. Emery, of 8 Barclay Place, Grand Rapids, Mich, U.S.A.

Baby's Own Tablets are a remedy for simple fever, indigestion, constipation, colic, diarrhoea. They make teething easy and destroy worms. Of chemists, or post free, 60 cents the vial, from Mr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

Love Rescues Fashionable Miss Sedgwick From A Working Girl's Life

After a Year of Punching the Time Clock, in Steps Her Childhood Sweetheart Now a Multi-Millionaire and Ends Her Financial Worries Forever---Just as It Happens in the Movies!

"In a moment Miss Adelaide's star changed its course. She punched the clock for the last time, drew her last pay envelope and Cupid locked the door forever."

Miss Adelaide Sedgwick in One of the Hats She Made Herself. Her Engagement to Mr. John Munroe Ends Her Short Career as a Real Working Girl.

An Interesting and Unconventional Photograph of Miss Sedgwick—the Girl in the Hat—with the Former Miss Maude Kahn and Other Society Friends in a Day Off from the Shop.

PHOTOS BY INTERNATIONAL

WHEN Miss Adelaide Sedgwick—fashionable society belle of New York, Newport and, in richer days Paris as well—gave up her birthright, the existence of being a social butterfly, and took an honest-to-goodness job in a dressmaking establishment, her family and many of her friends sighed dolefully and said: "Well, it may be all right for her to go to work, but, of course she is ruining her chances for making a decent marriage."

Announcement by Mrs. Harry Sedgwick of the marriage engagement of her daughter Adelaide to John Munroe, multi-millionaire of Paris and New York, has proved that girls born to purple and fine linen can become working girls and still find rich husbands, no matter how gloomily society talks.

By this romance, Miss Sedgwick is enabled to give up her dual role of working girl by day and fashionable belle by night, and will become the latter once more both night and day. It has been a year now that she has been punching the time clock and earning a weekly wage which enabled her to dress as she desired. And all that time Mr. Munroe, it appears, has been ardently but quietly wooing her. And at last he has won.

John Munroe has a good deal of money, to begin with, and considerably more in the future. He is the eldest son of the Henry Whitney Munroes, of New York and Tuxedo, and a grandson and namesake of the founder of the banking house of John Munroe & Co., of Paris and New York. The Munroe firm represents not only great wealth, but social prestige and influence, and while it is in what we might call the conservative class to-day the family are still powerful financially and socially.

To have captured this most eligible young bachelor is a great card for Miss Sedgwick, not only because of his family and fortune, but because he is what our leading novelists call an upstanding young hero, carrying not only the scars of war, but the much coveted Croix de Guerre and a reputation for courage and gallantry.

He was graduated from Harvard in 1913 and when the war broke out the following year he helped to found and served with the American Field Ambulance. After two years of active service he joined the French artillery and was one of the first Americans to receive a commission from the French Government.

Back of all these surface things, however, there is a really charming romance, known only to a few of Miss Sedgwick's closest friends, a romance that is just beginning to be whispered over tall lemonade glasses or thin-shelled teacups.

The war hero, it develops, did not just drop out of the blue sky and insist on marrying the lady to save her from working herself to death. No, indeed! Their love story might well serve as a model for a five-reel movie or a legitimate stage play of the sort that any daughter could take her mother to.

The first scene would show a boy and girl playing together in the lovely Tuxedo country. Of course, "Jackie" Munroe was five years older than little Adelaide, but their families were friends and neighbors and the children attended the same dancing class and played together between times. Then they were torn apart, for the Henry Munroes went to Paris to look after their banking interests there. Whether or not the children shed tears over their separation history refuses to say, but we do know that a few years later Adelaide persuaded her mother to go to Paris to live.

The second scene might show the Sedgwicks landing in France at the very time that Munroe sailed from its shores to enter Harvard College. Business of tears and lamentations on the part of Miss Sedgwick. Also further business of her settling down with her mother and sister and taking up French in a serious way. For several years the Sedgwicks continued living in France, the real reason for this being the cheapness of living there compared with existence in New York.

At that time, when Americans of social position suffered from a loss of income they invariably went abroad to live, it being much simpler to live on a small income in either France or Italy than it would be to hide away in some country place and economize in their native land. The Sedgwicks, being poor members of a proud family, naturally found it easier and pleasanter to live in France.

During this period, while Munroe was going through Harvard, Miss Sedgwick spent her time learning how to live and dress on a most limited allowance. It was at this time that she first displayed an uncanny talent for making her dresses and hats and even lamp shades and other pretty things for the house.

Then, of course, came August, 1914, when France was invaded and life turned topsy turvy for everyone living in that war-torn country. Miss Sedgwick and her sister, Aileen, now Mrs. James Blackstone Taylor, were immediately drawn into war work. Adelaide worked long hours a day and at night, too, in a canteen, and then in one of the big war hospitals. She saw many of the early horrors of war and put through months of heart-breaking labor.

Munroe, like dozens of other young American men, found himself impelled to enter the lists against Germany. Hurrying to France at the first opportunity he found his place in the American Field Ambulance, and day and night drove his high-powered car between the fighting lines and the hospitals. He carried hundreds of wounded and was frequently under heavy shell fire.

One day, when delivering a load of wounded at a hospital just outside of Paris he met the American girl he had played with so long ago. There was nothing spectacular in this meeting, they knew each other at once and their greeting was as casual as though occurring in the Sedgwick drawingroom. Of course, they had lots to talk about and naturally they arranged to meet again during their next free time. There were walks in and about Paris, with odd moments snatched for tea or lunch, with always our hero leaving for the danger zone and Adelaide going back to her duty and her very becoming uniform.

But the girl was young, she showed the strain of the work she was doing, and after a year her mother packed up her belongings, and her family returned to New York. She felt that her two girls had seen enough and now they must return to their own land and live a normal life.

Munroe and his childhood sweetheart were again separated. He gave up his ambulance job and enlisted in the French Army, for he realized that while his life saving service was valuable, the real job lay in getting actually into the fight. And now passed three years, filled with fighting and danger for him, in which he won the Croix de Guerre, and three years of worry and inaction for Miss Sedgwick.

In New York the Sedgwicks found life very strange and unsettling. Girls were coming out in a regulation way, and there were the usual parties and dances. There were also any number of benefits arranged to help the people of Belgium and France, and in these Adelaide took an active part. But this sort of life takes a great deal of money and the Sedgwick fortunes were at a low ebb. Being independent, Adelaide took to making lamp-shades, sofa-cushions and other knick-knacks to sell. In this way she earned pin money for herself and tried to be content.

Last Winter, however, she took a desperate step. As she expressed it herself: "I am tired of doing these foolish, aimless nothings; I can make dresses and sell them, I shall get a real job."

And the curtain now rises on the former society bud and war-worker punching a time clock in a fashionable dressmaker's shop in the Fifth avenue section. Adelaide's most coveted possession is a decoration bestowed on her by the French Government, but her pride in it was equalled by the thrill that came with her first pay-envelope. The thrill that comes once in a lifetime!

Since last October she has been a working girl, with all that term means. In her heart did she wonder what her hero would think of her big step? Miss Sedgwick has never worn her heart on her sleeve. She may have waxed confidential to her chum, Marion Tiffany, but Miss Tiffany tells no secrets, and what went on in Miss Adelaide's heart and mind will never become public property.

But this we do know: Mr. Munroe came back from France last Winter and his first job was calling at the Sedgwick home. It also became a continuous job. He even reached the point where he insisted on meeting Miss Sedgwick near her shop and walking home with her by way of Central Park and the less frequented side streets.

There were carefully chaperoned motor trips and long, happy days at Lenox, where the Sedgwick family has generation-old affiliations. Tuxedo and Piping Rock also saw them.

Love was busy all the time, and its promise was fulfilled on a lovely May day when Mrs. Sedgwick announced her daughter's engagement to young Mr. Munroe.

In a moment Adelaide's star changed its course. She punched the clock for the last time, she drew her final pay envelope and started in to make wedding dresses for herself instead of clothes for her friends and customers. There will be no need for her to work for money any longer, her future income will supply all the pretties she needs, and we hear of handsome jewels and rare laces that are to come to her through her marriage.

The Sedgwick flat will give place to a stately home at Tuxedo, and limousines and chummy roadsters will replace the Fifth avenue bus and street car. The sumptuous dress fabrics she has handled to make luxurious gowns for strangers will now adorn her own slender figure, and for almost the first time in her life our heroine will revel in all the expensive gowns her feminine soul longs for.

Life will indeed be changed. And every one is delighted, for society has been very proud of its plucky member who had the courage to go out into the workaday world and earn an honest living. Society has little use for the Lily Barts, who try to live in a "House of Mirth." Snobbish though it may be in the small things of heart society loves a fighter, especially of the female gender. At heart society also likes to have its workers and fighters come back into its fold, and especially through a real love romance such as the one wherein Adelaide Sedgwick and John Munroe find themselves destined to live happily ever after.

MUNICIPAL NOTIFICATION
No. 2715.

SHANGHAI MUNICIPAL COUNCIL 6 PER CENT. STERLING LOAN, 1920.
Amount £750,000
Price of Issue £100 per cent.

UNDER the authority of Resolution VII passed at the Annual Meeting of Ratepayers on April 7, 1920, the Council hereby invites applications for Bearer Debentures (with coupons attached) in the 6 percent. Sterling Loan of 1920, which is issued on the following terms:—

(1) Debentures to Bearer, with Sterling interest coupons attached, will be issued at £100 percent in denominations of £1,000, £500, £100 and £50.

(2) The Debentures of this issue will bear interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum, payable on June 30 and December 31 in each year by sterling demand draft on London at par, or in silver (local currency) at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation's Shanghai current demand buying rate on London on date of presentation of the relative coupon. The first payment of interest will be made on December 31, 1920.

(3) Applications, accompanied by payment in full, will be received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, No. 12 The Bund, on and after May 1, up to and including June 30, 1920, the Council reserving to itself the right of closing the subscription lists on any day previous to June 30, 1920, by Notification in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai.

(4) Payment on application will be accepted in Silver (local currency) at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation's current selling T.T. rate on London and will bear interest from date of payment, or in Sterling by T.T. or Demand Draft on London. Interest on payments made in Sterling will only accrue from the date on which the relative remittances are received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, London.

The cost of all telegrams involved through payment by Sterling T.T. shall be paid by the applicant.

Payment will be acknowledged by Banker's Receipt pending issue of the Debentures.

In the event of any applicant not being allotted the full amount applied for, the amount over-applied for will be repaid in full, plus interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum from the date payment was received in Shanghai or London to the due date of repayment in Shanghai, as notified to the applicant by special notice from the Council.

(5) The Loan will be redeemed at par on June 30, 1950, but may be redeemed by the Council in whole or in part on June 30, 1930, and/or on any subsequent date or dates on which the half-yearly interest is payable, subject to the Council giving six calendar months' notice in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai. In the event of any partial redemption of the loan the numbers of the Debentures to be redeemed will be decided by drawing. The numbers of such drawn Debentures will be notified in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai not less than three months prior to the date of repayment.

Application forms can be obtained on and after May 1, from the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, No. 12 The Bund, or from the Treasurer and Comptroller, Finance Department, 24B Kiangse Road, to whom all enquiries should be addressed.

By order,
N. O. LIDDELL,
Secretary.

KINGMAN & BROS.
How to Preserve the Teeth

In order to keep the teeth in a good condition scientific precaution must be taken. Through negligence, decay and numerous other affections such as tooth-ache, dental periostitis esteo-periostitis, necrose is of the jaw, etc., may arise. During the process of ingestion there are settled on the teeth, some deposits of mineral and organic matters, called tartar, which possesses a morbid power of pressing the gum. As an inevitable result of the presence of this tartar, the teeth will become elongated and movable and will, by degrees, absorb away the enamel, leading ultimately to the decay and degeneration of the teeth. The tartar is so hard and resistant to the process of brushing that it cannot be scraped off except with dental instruments specially devised for that purpose.

Dr. KINGMAN offers to the public his service for preserving their teeth at an annual subscription Fee of $10.00 per head to be paid in advance.

The work to be done by Dr. KINGMAN to the subscribers consists in:—
(1) Cleaning of the teeth quarterly
(2) Filing with gold platinum alloy only, when the teeth present holes.
(3) Inspecting the teeth, at any time at the desire of the subscribers.

Effects Of Foreign Education In China Homes

OUR correspondence under the above caption becomes increasingly interesting. The fact that it is being conducted by foreign educated Chinese students makes it, in our opinion, of high value. The writers are not to be classed for a moment as "half-baked." The quality of their foreign education is clearly shown by the excellence of the English they employ and the directness with which they state their opinions.

That foreign education creates social problems in Chinese homes we believe, not to be questioned. The heads of thousands of Chinese families are struggling with the problem today. Educational departures anywhere create problems and they also solve some other problems, but the change from the Chinese system of education to the foreign system constitutes a change from top to bottom, is nothing short of revolutionary, and for this reason observers hesitate to criticise old style Chinese for their slowness to recognise the inevitability of change, and change in this instance means the change from Chinese fashion to foreign fashion. It is precisely because they are old style Chinese educated under the old system that they palter with the most vital issue confronting them and their sons and their country.

The old system has blinded them to the facts of their everyday existence. They fail to realise that every improvement and every advance that has been made in China or in the world within their lifetimes has been the direct result of foreign educational methods. Every steamship that comes into the harbor bears witness to the efficacy of foreign methods, every telegraph line, locomotive, telephone, electric light, cotton, silk, steel and flour mill—but why go on with the list?

The point is, that China today must either slink back into the past and die or she must go forward and live, and she can only accomplish the latter by means of foreign education. There is no other way. The young Chinese men and women who are writing these letters to THE CHINA PRESS understand this. They also see all about them the new problems that are being created by the fact that a very small percentage of the Chinese are receiving foreign educations. The conflict is inevitable but there can be no turning back for China and these young students who, as we say, understand this are earnestly striving to make the transition easier and smoother. Individuals will from time to time be dissatisfied with the results of foreign education to themselves, as foreign individuals in their own cases frequently are, but they can never quarrel with the general results to the country.

Subjoined will be found some of the latest letters we have received on this subject:

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir: In glancing over THE CHINA PRESS yesterday morning, I saw an article written by Mr. Cheng Chien, pointing out the faults of the foreign educated Chinese girl student of today. It was a letter similar in nature to the one which Miss Kwei wrote about a week ago. In my opinion both Miss Kwei and Mr. Cheng are been observers but there is one thing which they lack and that is fairness of judgment. I am afraid Miss Kwei and Mr. Cheng are too pessimistic and like true pessimists, they have been quick in discovering the dark side of foreign education and have overlooked its good points.

Perhaps this is because they have mingled only with their own circle of friends and having found the conditions which they have so vividly described existing in the families of some of their friends, they immediately jumped to the conclusion that most foreign-educated students are what they have described them to be. Like all partial observers they have failed to see the good side of foreign education.

Personally, I don't see any harm in speaking English and adopting western fashions and ideas so long as we remain Chinese. Indeed, we are fortunate today in being able to converse in English. Our brothers of the different provinces never have found a more appropriate language in which they may converse freely and yet understand each other. Unless Mandarin becomes our spoken language we can never hope to free ourselves from speaking English where English is the only language which we can use as a medium. I would strongly advocate that all our schools and colleges give a course in Mandarin as the means of bringing our brothers to a closer understanding and a better unity.

Miss Kwei and Mr. Cheng should not harbor the impression that Chinese who speak and dress in English do not have happy homes. Far from it. In dwelling upon the question of a happy home, both Miss Kwei and Mr. Cheng seem to hold the same opinion. What they have said holds true to only a few and for us to judge the whole body of foreign educated students by the misdeeds of a few is unjust. To begin with, why do parents foster early engagements, and early marriages even, when they hope to see their son complete his course abroad? I once knew of a friend who was forced into marriage by his parents just before he left for America. Now then, do you think that the parents are justified in their action and is a happy home possible in such cases? We all know that engagements without mutual understanding on both sides are never binding. They should never be made unless the young man and the young lady thoroughly understand each other. This is especially the case if the young man or the young lady intends to go abroad to seek a higher education.

For, after one has been abroad for a while, it is natural that foreign influences will come into play and with the keen and observant minds which all young people possess, it is obvious that new ideas cannot escape the notice of the ambitious young man or young lady whose purpose of going abroad is to adopt all the new ideas they can get hold of and put them into practice when they return to their beloved country. After a man has been in America or England for some time, his ideas regarding various things in life will be very much altered from the time when he was still in China, and if he happens to be engaged, it is not an impossibility that he may break the engagement because his ideas are now different from his fiancee's.

Even if they are married, with ideas in conflict do you think the two will ever establish a happy home? I doubt it. Now then, why do parents ever allow early engagements when they know that their son or daughter will go abroad and come back a "new" man or a "new" lady because of new ideas? Therefore, I should say, it is a plain mistake for the parents to permit their son or daughter to become engaged before going abroad. Let him or her do so after he or she returns filled with ideas which he or she thinks will help to make a happy home, a living home, which is essential to a living country. However, I hope my readers will not think that I advocate or believe in the breaking of engagements, divorces, and the like. Far from it. My chief aim is to bring out the evil of early engagements and early marriages.

There is, however, still another evil which I think is harmful to a happy home, and this is the habit of gambling. Gambling seems to be the style and pastime of most people. A gambler cannot hope to have a happy home and a wife who gambles cannot find time to give the necessary care to her home and children.

In conclusion, I would like to say that the present discussion is the result of new ideas taking the place of the old. The students are now taking the leading role in the development of Young China, as can be seen in the recent student movements. The movement itself is the result of new ideas which have taken root in the minds of the students. To come to the point, I should say that the attack upon the foreign educated students at this moment is also the result of new ideas. The minds of the students are also undergoing transition and where the new ideas come in contact and intermingle with the old we have discontent and disorder. We can easily observe that there are now two antagonistic forces working in the minds of the students—the old or conservative ideas and the new. With the two forces working against each other, comments and criticisms on different subjects cannot be avoided. Indeed they are to be welcomed.

And in transitional periods of whatever nature, we should not judge harshly nor quickly. We should not act without first deliberating and receiving advice from our elders. We should not fail to take in what is good and allow whatever that is detrimental to pass. I believe that these criticisms of the foreign educated students are good signs of mental awakening in the student world itself. Whether our criticisms and judgments are just or not we will leave to time to decide. Let us hope that students who are now receiving foreign education will see to it that they apply their education in the right way. Foreign influence itself is not harmful. It is injurious only when we take it in the wrong light and spirit. Whether it is beneficial or detrimental depends upon how we apply it. Therefore, I sincerely hope that we, as students, will henceforth try our utmost to apply our education as best suited for the development of our beloved country, I am, yours sincerely,

ONE WHO IS INTERESTED.

IN DEFENSE OF THE CHINESE WIFE

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: I have read with interest the letter written by your correspondent "A Young Husband" in your issue of the 6th inst., but to me, it seems to carry the flavor of a highly disappointed and dissatisfied husband, unfolding to the public his own sad story of married life. If he is illustrating the qualities of his own spouse, or that of some of his close acquaintances, I have nothing to say, but if he intends the stuff he has written about Chinese wives to be taken authoritatively by your readers, then I for one, refuse to swallow it.

What he has written, may make good reading to the lighthearted, but to those who give the matter more serious thought, it is ridiculous and shameful to bring all Chinese wives under the same category, for, there are different classes of Chinese ladies, and I doubt if he has been fortunate enough to come in contact with our best.

His descriptions of the foreign wife and her accomplishments are quite true (in some cases) and all that he says, is what husband expect of their better-halves, but is he sure that every foreign wife is so angelic? Is he also so certain that among Chinese wives, there are none equally as virtuous as their foreign sisters? Certainly there are, and plenty of them.

He complains of the wife setting down after marriage with no other object than to spend the husband's money, neglect home and children and dress herself at her best only when going out, for the benefit of others to look at and not for the husband while at home. This, he asserts, causes the husband to come home and curse, which brings forth the wife's unceremonious retorts (I should say so) and then the typhoon rages, so the infuriated husband (beast) to drown his sorrows, seeks tranquality in "flowery feasts." He also says that the reason husbands leave their homes for undesirable places, is on account of the wife's short comings, and compares these husbands with Mr. Jiggs.

In selecting Mr. Jiggs as their standard of man, he and his class of husbands have chosen rightly.

The Chinese wife, with old-fashioned ideas, may not be up to the right standard, to satisfy our modernised young man, but since they have become man and wife, would it not be much nicer for the young husband to try and convert her to his way of thinking. It may be a rather tedious task, but it would be much wiser than to blame her always, for what, in her eyes and mind, seem to be quite right. One strong word from either the husband or wife may be enough to form a chasm too wide to be breached in a lifetime, and this should be avoided, even at great self-sacrifice, if married life is to be made successful and happy.

The idea of many, that foreign education and customs will be the means of creating happy homes for the Chinese, I cannot believe. To accept points that are good and to drop those that are bad, is a formula very commendable, but this alone is not sufficient to solve the problem.

To my mind, love, and reciprocal love only, is the essence of a happy home. Where such love exists between a married couple, the humblest home is as good as a palace.

Although I have traveled a great deal and have adopted foreign ideas in many respects, I have not yet become convinced that our Chinese girls need actual foreign education unless their daughters aspire to become specialists or the wives of diplomats. In my opinion, they should be taught Chinese as thoroughly as possibly, having useful foreign literature translated for their benefit. In this manner they would have the opportunity of acquiring a knowledge of things foreign, without hindering the progress of their national education, and this would help minimise the danger of our having too many independent girls, who, with a spattering of the English language, may consider themselves too accomplished to become the wives of our youths.

I am not a returned student and therefore do not wish to interfere in their little war. In the first place, I have taken up the cudgels on behalf of my old-fashioned wife, who cannot speak a word of English but has made me a happy husband during my 25 years of married life, and may God be pleased to favor us with many more to come. In the second place, you have kindly invited discussion and I have ventured to express my personal opinion, which I expect will not meet with the approval of all your readers, but hope it will help bring forth further suggestions that may benefit the Chinese people, whether students or not.

Hoping I have not taken up too much of your valuable space and enclosing my card. Yours faithfully,

T. A. S.

TEACH 'EM TO PLAY BOTH PIANO AND COOK STOVE!

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir.—The spark started by Miss T. L. Kwei in your correspondence columns has gradually widened its circle and attracted intense interest. In all the correspondence so far published, we find one thing in common, that is, both our foreign educated boys and girls find that something is wrong.

The subject of marriage brought forward by Miss Kwei, it seems to me, is entirely authentic and is the greatest defect of the foreign educated boys. As Chinese society is now in a transitional period, it is not uncommon that foreign educated boys are compelled by their old-fashioned parents to marry old-fashioned girls. These boys, feeling that they are privileged to have English-speaking ladies treat them as social equals, take it as a disgrace to have a wife chosen by their parents. The result is that the poor, innocent wife is left aside uncared for like a widow for the simple reason that she does not understand English. Even worse are those who have already been married long ago before they receive an education. After their graduation, their air is so high that they seek a divorce in order to make way for another marriage.

We have heard from foreign educated boys that foreign education for girls is of utmost importance in the uplift of China. Therefore, under such circumstances, the proper attitude that a foreign educated husband should take is to try his best to uplift his hither-to ignorant wife. He can use his influence in teaching her the modern way of keeping her home and the caretaking of her children. I cannot see any man who is more patriotic than the one who tries to save these poor souls who have not had a chance of receiving an education like we have. As stated before, our society is now in a transitional period. Some of us cannot help suffering from the old conservatism of our fathers. We have to sacrifice and prepare the way for the younger generations. We are the ones to bring about a compromise between the "old" of our fathers and the "new" that is in us.

I agree in some respects with "A Young Husband" with respect to the present attitude of Chinese girls. But what he hits is that class of our girls who know a little "A.B.C." When they get out of school, they think that they are foreigners and the whole world is in their heads. They expect to marry rich people or returned students, because they think that all boys capable of speaking English are good. Should their lot fall into the hands of a non-foreign educated husband, or in a poor family, they turn into "Maggies" with rolling pins ever ready at hand. They despise even their immediate superiors in the family to say nothing of the country relatives. They seem to know everything, but in fact they really know nothing. The poor husbands, who have not enough money to support such extravagent wives, (who want everything in foreign style) have to "sneak out" and look back with grim faces on the so-called "foreign influence."

However, kicking this class out of consideration, we might discuss the higher class of educated girls with a view to reaching a conclusive and constructive remedy. The heaviest charge that is now brought upon these girls in general is that they are too sensitive to style and too ignorant of housekeeping. It is true that this is generally the case. But I attribute the fault not to the girls themselves, but to the schools that educate them. The present tendency in most of the schools run by foreigners is to educate wholly from the social standpoint. The girls are taught to play pianos and to speak fluent English. Readers might recall the great McTyeire Sorority Fete held in the former German Club sometime ago. Here is a typical example. I was certainly delighted to find such excellent musicians and actresses, and beautiful ushers and sales ladies. But, I do not know how many of them can cook a decent Chinese dish which is only a tenth part of a wife's duties.

Indeed sociability is a necessity, but the knowledge of housekeeping is an absolute and urgent necessity. Of course, every Chinese should thank our enthusiastic and kind missionaries in their strenuous efforts to uplift the womanhood of China. But as most of them are bachelors, housekeeping courses are generally neglected.

It is my sincere hope, in conclusion, that the future tendency of women's education in China should be an assimilation of western "socials" and Chinese "domestics" modified along modern lines. Will any enthusiastic educator start a movement as mentioned above? Yours truly,

"A Young Bachelor."

READING MATTER FOR THE NAVY

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir.—We have received another appeal from Chaplain Witherspoon, U.S.S. Huron, for a quantity of magazines for the 900 men of his ship, the 500 of the Albany and the 650 of the destroyers, all at Chefoo for a month or more.

Through the generosity of those who read our last request in THE CHINA PRESS and together with magazines diverted from Russia we sent some 2,500 magazines on the last appeal. Owing to the failure of the C.P.O.S. to bring mail, much current literature has not reached here or up north, hence there is particular need for these men now. Thanking you for again presenting this next Tuesday,

Sincerely yours,
M. S. DURBIN.

America Breaks All Records In Commerce

Washington, June 22 (Associated Press.)—Since the beginning of the World War in 1914 the United States has rolled up a trade balance of approximately $17,000,000,000 against the world. This exceeds by several billions the total balance in favor of the United States from 1875 to 1914.

Department of Commerce figures today show that the trade balance made in favor of the United States in the fiscal year ending in 1914, one month before the war began, was only $470,000,000. During the first year of the war it was $1,094,419,600, and in the next year, ending June 30, 1916, it was $2,135,599,375. During the succeeding year the total was $3,530,693,209.

Meantime the United States had entered the struggle and in the year ending June 30, 1918—the first full fiscal year of America's participation—the balance was only $2,974,055,973. In the next year ending last June 30, however, it was $4,136,562,618.

During the first eleven months of this fiscal year the balance was only $2,788,451,602, but exports were larger in those eleven months than in any other full fiscal year in the nation's history, totalling $7,474,193,349, as against the previous twelve months' record of $7,232,282,686 made during the last fiscal year.

At the same time that America's export trade began to advance by leaps and bounds, the import trade also showed an enormous increase, totalling $2,917,883,510 in the year ending June 30, 1916, and advancing steadily each year to a new high record of $4,685,741,747 during the eleven months of the present fiscal year. The previous high record was $3,095,720,068 last year.

Most of the favorable trade balance of the United States has been against the allied and neutral countries of Europe. Many of the South American and North American countries and some of those in the Far East have a balance against the United States.

LINES FROM LETTERS

Dear Bertie: This is a topping place, old bean. Why, there isn't a beastly thing that you cannot get if you jolly well pay for it. Shanghai is on the jolly old Whangpoo, don't-cha-know, and weally, the life is just frightfully hot, both in temperature and in other little things. Last Saturday I was taken to one of those Yankee games called baseball. Why my dear old thing it's perfectly spiffing. I simply revelled in it. So much so that I made up my mind to have another jolly beastly afternoon watching the jolly old Bolsheviki and the topping young regulars play. The game was posted for Sunday, and so after an early breakfast, somewhere about three of the afternoon clock, I wandered to the awfully green old Racecourse and waited for the teams to arrive. There were quite a lot of us who waited, but neither the jolly old Bolsheviks or the topping young Regulars turned up. My dear old bean, the language: Why we are not in it when it comes to language. Those awfully beastly jolly old Yanks have more swear words than we have ever thought of. I am going to see Viscount Downs, who is the baseball prime minister, today and either he or Miss Viola Verclaire, the frightfully pwetty little baseball reporter, will tell me why the jolly old Bolsheviks and the topping young regulars did not bally well turn up to hit the beastly ball all over the green sward. But more of this when I am not so beastly awfully tired.

Yours, dear old bean

ALGY.

CRICKET CHIRPS

Ever so many years ago, and for better or for worse, I was dumped in Shanghai without a pal to smile at me, and with hardly a bean to purchase a smile. I had the blues badly, and then suddenly the sun seemed to shine, the place assumed a new aspect and I felt that the Model Settlement was going to be just right. The genius who happened to be the innocent cause of the change in my outlook is still with us, but within a very few hours he will have left the port to go and do good deeds and good business too, I hope, in the coral strands of India and in the fertile parts of Mesopotamia.

He takes with him a pipe, given to him on Saturday afternoon by a number of cricketers, just as a little token of their appreciation of a good sportsman. He plays a fine game of billiards, he can bat and bowl, there is not much he cannot tell about a horse, and he knows how to back one as well. He not only is a boxer of note, but he has been instrumental in teaching many of our "Young Hopes" locally to find their way about the roped arena. He is a writer with a grip, and he can talk any amount of good common sense. He comes from Australia, and with a fine war experience behind him he is a model of a soldier and a gentleman. SOME BIRD

A quail is a little bird that is good to eat. A Quayle is some bird, who is too big and tough to eat, but at cricket he is a whale. So well has the hot weather agreed with him that in eight days he has hit three centuries against the trundlers who have tried to capture his citadel with deceptive flights.

"What is a 'centurion?'" asked a teacher yesterday at his summer school.

"A centurion is Jimmy Quayle," came the answer from a budding Hobbs.

"But who is Jimmy Quayle?" asked the curious dominie.

"An absolute bally marvel."

BRINGING UP FATHER

The method of selecting a place to spend the summer will be the same this year as last. Father brings home a list of thirty possible places. He goes over the list carefully and marks off twenty places where the prices are reasonable and where you can obtain a good rest without worrying about clothes.

From the remaining ten mother and the girls will then choose the place to which they are really going.

What Is Man's Mind?

Garrett P. Serviss Discusses Great Unsolved Riddle Of The Ages

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"I have been very much interested in your articles. Will you kindly give a short thesis on the mind of man? What is it? Does it occupy space? Is it a substance, or is there such a thing as 'solidified thoughts'—G. P."

Inasmuch as the wisest philosophers of all times have failed to produce a satisfactory description of the mind, while the most acute scientists of our day disagree concerning its nature, it would be very presumptuous for me to pretend to know all, or even anything about it.

Nevertheless, the subject is of the highest interest to every thinking being, more particularly to all who, even though they have no fixed conviction about the matter, shrink from admitting that they are essentially as evanescent and unenduring as soap bubbles, the creatures and the victims of blind, irresponsible, uncontroled forces.

To me one of the most repellent developments of modern science is the doctrine of "tropisms," which ends by teaching that all apparently conscious acts motived by the will of an intelligent being, are simply reflexes of external influences, exemplified, to take a simple case by the heliotropism. ("turning toward the sun"), of certain flowers. Driven to the limit this doctrine would make a man no better than a worm so far as the "power of purposive and deliberate action" is concerned.

Yet, much as I dislike the tropism doctrine when pushed so far, I cannot but be impressed by its logic when, under the name of "geotropism" (turning in the direction of gravity), it affords a striking explanation of the fact that the trunks of trees assume a vertical position, even when growing on the side of a steep hill.

CONTROL BY PHYSICAL LAWS

Here one easily admits that there is no volition on the part of the tree; that the tree has no conscious feeling of uneasiness and does not make up its mind to stand straight, as a drunken man does when he calls in the aid of a lamppost, but that the phenomenon of verticality in the case of the tree is the result of the operation of purely physical laws, uncontrolled by anything outside themselves.

But, then, Professor Loeb says, "Wherever I have thus far investigated the cause of such 'voluntary' or 'instinctive' movements in animals, I have, without exception, discovered such circumstances at work as are known in inanimate nature as determining movements. By the help of these causes it is possible to control the 'voluntary' movements of a living animal just as securely and unequivocally as the engineer has been able to control the movements in inanimate nature. What has been taken for the effect of 'will' or 'instinct' is in reality the effect of light, of gravity, of friction, of chemical forces, etc."

If this view be pushed so far as to include human actions under the head of tropisms—and that is what it seems to be headed for—then the mind, as something independent of the brain and the nervous system, and other bodily organs and functions, can have no existence; then the mind must be an appearance only and not a reality, like an image in a mirror.

But suppose we admit even that; then what about the "engineer" whom Prof. Loeb has to call in to "control the movements," since the moving creatures cannot control them of their own volition? Is the "engineer" behind the human mind himself controlled by a tropism? Where does the chain of tropisms end?

I am asking questions rather than trying to answer them. I do not think that human knowledge is in a position to explain these things, fundamentally. I at least cannot explain my mind to my mind. Yet I believe, although I may not be able scientifically to prove, that my mind can suggest and govern voluntary action, and that it is above the world of blind physical tropism.

DREAMS IN DROWSY STATE

The intimations that this is so are like shoot lighting on a Summer's night, silent witnesses of something beyond the horizon. Below is such an intimation from a writer never, I think, regarded as a speculative philosopher. You will find it somewhat differently stated in two places in Dickens' story of "Oliver Twist:"

"There is a drowsy state, between sleeping and waking, when you dream more in five minutes with your eyes open, and yourself halfconscious of everything passing around you, than you would in five nights with your eyes fast closed and your senses wrapt in perfect unconsciousness. At such times a mortal knows just enough of what his mind is doing to form some glimmering conception of its mighty powers, its bounding from earth and spurning time and space, when freed from the restraint of its corporeal associate."

Edgar Allan Poe has given similar testimony, and many have had such experiences.

Chesterton On Divorce

Law Court More Ritualistic Than Church, Says Witty Philosopher

A serious work of philosophy was adversely criticised last year on the ground that the logic by which its conclusions were reached was "shot through with assumptions which were not empirically tested." No one will be so solemn or so irrelevant as to bring this charge against Gilbert K. Chesterton's latest book, "The Superstition of Divorce." (John Lane Company). Mr. Chesterton is cheerfully disinclined to subject his arguments to empirical tests. He starts with a number of definitions and then, having proved all the ramifications of his thought to be in accord with those definitions, regards the case as closed. Satisfied with his own logic Mr. Chesterton conceivably may be; the reader's satisfaction comes from the skill and surprise of the paradox, from the humanity and good nature and good sense that often glint through the subtle fabric of wit like warm sunshine. The last think that any one will take the book to be a serious argument against divorce.

Yet the book has an intellectual scheme. Mr. Chesterton is concerned to show us that marriage is based on a vow and that the inherent nature of a vow demands that it be observed—the ideal of the vow is "to combine the fixity that goes with finality with the self-respect that only goes with freedom."—And, of course, it is Mr. Chesterton's method to show that things are not what they seem. Those who argue for divorce put forward certain grounds of those who argue against it. For example, some hold that marriage is a mere ritual. "But what is divorce but a ritual?" asks Mr. Chesterton? What is more ritualistic than law? "It is the partisans of divorce, not the defenders of marriage, who attach a stiff and senseless sanctity to a mere ceremony, apart from the meaning of the ceremony, hope to be saved by the letter of ritual, instead of the spirit of reality. It is they who hold that vow or violation, loyalty, can all be disposed of by a mysterious and magic rite, performed first in a law-court and then in a church or registry office." In fact, Mr. Chesterton holds that as far as ritual goes, there is little difference between the church and the court, except that the law court is "much more ritualistic."

Some people assert that marriage imposes excessive constraint on the individual. Mr. Chesterton, of course, undertakes to prove that marriage is the freest kind of freedom. Civic fidelity is undoubtedly a constraint, as well as a necessity. And nationality is a thing that a man cannot escape, despite the jibe of Gilbert which congratulated the Englishman on his fine taste in not being a Russian. (Mr. Chesterton pauses here for a joke about "persons who seemed to think they could be Russians when the fancy took them.") "It is not true of Mr. Brown that he might have been a Russian; but it may be true of Mrs. Brown that she might have been a Robinson."

The marriage vow is the vow most freely made; the loyalty is voluntarily assumed, unlike our civic loyalty. From this Mr. Chesterton leaps to the conclusion that in marriage there is no contract at all. "There is no contract, unless it be that said to be signed in blood, that can call spirits from the vasty deep; or bring cherubs (or goblins) to inhabit a small modern villa." Here, as at not a few other places, Mr. Chesterton manages to focus his dialectic upon reality and throw light upon reality.

There is, almost literally, no end of amusing dicta, with which, of course, one may or may not agree. A few may be quoted: "Tories were preaching conscription, not so much to defend the independence of England as to destroy the independence of Englishmen. Liberals, of course were chiefly interested in eliminating liberty, especially touching beer and betting." "Capitalism believes in collectivism for itself and individualism for its enemies." (Mr. Chesterton argues weakly that capitalism is opposed to the family, as one sort of brotherhood which holds people together.) "There is a sinister symbolism in the fact that almost the only emblem still hung above a shop is that of the three balls of Lombardy."

The Chinese Benevolent Association
271-6 Boulevard des Deux Republiques

Benevolent Fund Ticket

First Prize $50,000.00

Issued under the authorisation of the Government of the Republic of China on the 8th July, 1918.

To be drawn among 30,000 successive numbers in full view of the public in Shanghai, China, on August 20, 1920.

One tenth of each ticket will be sold at $0.60, the proceeds of which after payment of prizes, charges, etc., will be divided between the Famine Relief Fund and the Benevolent Institutions. The Association reserves to itself the right to allocate the proceeds to the above objects; if any of the tickets are unsold on date of drawing, proportional reduction in the allocation will be made.

Price for Whole Tickets: $6.00

Tickets may be obtained from all dealers.

All prizes won locally will be given at The Chinese Benevolent Association (271-6, Boulevard des Deux Republiques, Shanghai); if abroad, will be paid at the Branch Offices of The Bank of China elsewhere.
